IT'S QUIET NOW, BUT . . . — This block of Alpine Street, in San Rafael, has been the scene of a number of wild parties which residents have blamed on members of the Hell's Angels motorcycle club, most believed to be visiting from the East Bay. San Rafael police say they have been called out repeatedly to quell loud parties, but have made no arrests because no one has yet signed a complaint. The owner of the house which seems to be the center of attraction, No. 225, has asked the residents to leave by Friday.

Both Pakistan, India Declare Truce Violation

U.N. Receives Protests; Neither Side Will Budge

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Both India and Pakistan accused the other anew today of violating the Kashmir cease - fire. Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri conceded the truce was an uneasy one and said, "We have to remain vigilant and alert."

Reports from Pakistan radio and the clandestine "Voice of Kashmir" said some fighting continued in Kashmir where Moslem "freedom fighters" from Pakistan infiltrated in August to touch off Indian reprisals and a three-week war with Pakistan.

STANDS PAT

Both sides refused to budge from territory seized from the other, adding to the difficulty of the United Nations in trying to keep the peace. Further complicating the situation were Pakistani charges that Indian artillery was still active in the Lahore area and Indian charges of Pakistani troop movements since the cease-fire.

An Indian protest to the United Nations said Pakistani troops "in sizable strength" introduced into the town of Fazlika Friday. Fazlika is about five miles inside India near Ferozepore and 45 miles south-southeast of Lahore. It said Pakistan had never controlled this area.

REPORT INTRUSION

The Indians also reported Pakistan troops intruded into Indian territory in the Jhangar sector of Kashmir near the southern border and had moved troops into Indian territory in the Sind desert area 600 miles south of Lahore the previous day.

Shastri, speaking to newsmen following an executive committee meeting of his ruling Congress party, confirmed the Indian protests to the U.N. and admitted "it is an uneasy cease - fire." Pakistan also protested alleged Indian violations to the U.N.

A Pakistani broadcast reported a continuing battle in the Lipa Valley along the 1949 U.N. cease-fire line. It also said Indian artillery was shelling Pakistani positions near Lahore and that Indian troops had occupied Alhar village in the Sialkot area. Sialkot, scene of a major tank battle earlier this week, is seven miles inside Pakistan below Kashmir.

Novato Airport Priority Asked

Study Would Defer Strip At Air Base

By RICHARD LYTTLE

Marin County should proceed with development of an airport at the present site at Novato and defer proposals for a parallel landing strip at Hamilton Air Force Base.

That is the essence of a report to Marin County supervisors by J. G. Percy, director of aeronautics for Ventura County in Southern California.

Percy was hired on a cost basis by Marin supervisors to make a two-week study of the county's airport needs. So far the cost has come to $727.

He recommends in a five-page report to the board that plans for the airport at Novato be expedited.

(The report was prepared prior to the Federal Aviation Authority's denial of an application for federal funds for development of the Novato site.)

Percy also recommends that a second airport eventually be located on the southwest shore of Richardson Bay, adjacent to Commodore helicopter property.

"The proposal related to joint usage of Hamilton Air Force Base as a major North Bay airport (should be) held in abeyance at this time due to cost factors and technical considerations until Air Force planning and utilization factors become more firm," Percy concludes.

PARALLEL STRIP

He estimates it would cost about $4 million to develop a parallel strip at Hamilton, much of this going into land acquisition.

Percy further recommends that "action be initiated at this time" for a staff to plan and coordinate his recommendations.

He also recommends creation of an airport advisory committee. There already is an airport advisory committee but it has been inactive for some time.

Percy further recommends that a small "recreational type" airport be developed with minimum standards in the vicinity of Point Reyes Station to serve the Point Reyes National Seashore.

122 PLANES

His study, the most recent in a series of at least six county airport studies, says that there are 122 planes owned by county residents but only 60 are based in Marin. He predicts that by 1990 there will be 390 private planes in the county.

The limit of a single strip field as that proposed at Novato is 350 planes, he says, so by 1990 the second field at Richardson

Governor Asks Redwoods Area National Road

Scenic Highway From Big Sur To Oregon Border

SANTA ROSA (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has proposed the establishment of a new national Redwood Road from Big Sur in Monterey County to the Oregon border.

Brown told the annual convention of the Redwood Empire Assn. last night he would discuss the plan with President Lyndon B. Johnson next month when the chief executive visits California.

Brown said he would appoint next week a Redwood Road Committee composed of county supervisors, representatives of the public, members of the association and businessmen to study the plan.

"I want to make it very clear at the beginning that we do not intend to lay a new ribbon of concrete from Big Sur to Oregon," Brown said.

He said he was "talking essentially of using existing roadways wherever possible."

He said the proposal would allow portions of Highways 1 and 101 and other routes to be used to provide a connected system of scenic roads.

Earlier, a state engineer told the convention that the Redwood Empire's highways would "be better than they were before" in commenting on the progress of the $300 million reconstruction project made necessary by the 1964 Christmas flood.

Engineer Sam Helwer said that by December the state will have built 12 new bridges where there were none before.

Helwer also announced plans for spending nearly $22 million in bypassing a dangerous section of the Redwood Highway.

The project would be in Mendocino and Humboldt counties.

He termed a 24-mile stretch of U.S. Highway 101 north of Cummings "the most obsolete section left on the entire Redwood Highway."

Bosch Returns To A Burst Of Gunfire

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Former president Juan D. Bosch returned home today from two years in exile. A burst of gunfire marred an otherwise hearty welcome from his followers.

The shooting came about halfway into Santo Domingo from the airport as his motorcade sped along a heavily guarded highway.

It could not be determined immediately whether anyone was hurt or the reason for the shooting.

Before leaving San Juan, P.R., Bosch's chartered plane was delayed an hour by a bomb scare.

The shooting was about 150 feet behind Bosch's car as it passed a check point guarded by army troops.

Bosch's car paused momentarily, then sped on toward the rebel sector of Santo Domingo. He waved to people who had ducked behind parked cars, apparently to assure them he was unharmed.

Driver Injured In Waldo Tunnel

A San Francisco man was injured late last night when the car he was driving careened off of the wall of the Waldo Tunnel on Highway 101 and overturned several times.

Eugene D. Parker, 21, was treated at Park Emergency Hospital in San Francisco for minor injuries after the accident occurred at 11:30 p.m.

Parker apparently hit the brakes too hard while in the southbound tunnel, reported the California Highway Patrol. The car skidded and rolled 277 feet, reported the CHB.

Housewives Brace For Wild Party

By JOHN KEARNEY

Housewives are living in fear behind the screen doors of quiet, tree-lined Alpine Street, San Rafael today. To many, it was the calm before the storm.

For it is on weekends, they say, that the Hell's Angels and their girlfriends move in to throw fun-filled, all-night bottle parties.

Bearded men in Levi's and foul weather coats, the girls in loose sweaters and tight pants converge on No. 225 — a single-story green-shingled house painted white like others in the street.

They come on high powered motorcycles and in flashy cars for their social gatherings. Most are from the East Bay, say neighbors.

This weekend may be a humdinger. The people who live at No. 225 and who, say the police, invite the Angels to their parties are under notice to get out by next Friday.

Lincoln Realty, who rents the house, served the notice after receiving complaints from neighbors.

"It's a real fun place," said one woman. "We are honestly afraid to go outside our homes when the gang arrives.

"Please don't mention my name. I don't want a brick through my window and the police can't give us protection."

Many homeowners were not at home to callers yesterday — even in broad daylight.

But several who did answer queries were determined not to be quoted for the record.

"We get nothing but abuse from the girls who live there and the men who come and go all day long," complained one woman.

According to nearby residents: Men tote loaded pistols and throw beer cans into the street.

Girls go for rides on the hoods of cars and litter the yards of neighbors with toilet tissue.

One girl playfully swung a glass ashtray at her Angel and split his head. Another cut her wrists, said residents.

But the day a red-bearded giant joyfully pursued a bikini-clad young thing across adjoining gardens and wrestled her to the ground, it was time to call the party over. The police were called.

"But when they get here," said one resident, "they tell us there is nothing they can do about it

Collier Sees An Easy Road To Legislature

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, speaking before the Redwood Empire Assn. in Santa Rosa yesterday, declared he will seek re-election in the 13-county district which is expected to result from reapportionment.

Collier, who now represents Del Mar Norte and Siskiyou, said: "I think I can be elected. All the incumbent senators will support me except for one."

This statement was later challenged by two incumbent state senators who were also attending the meeting.

"I am not supporting him," said Sen. Fred W. Marlar Jr., R-Redding. "I intend to run for election against him." Marlar, 33, an attorney, represents Trinity and Shasta Counties.

Sen. Frank S. Petersen, D-Ukiah, had this comment: "I haven't come out in support of anyone. In fact, I am seriously considering running myself." At present, Mendocino and Lake counties are Petersen's district. Petersen added that he is also considering the Democratic nomination for Congress, to oppose Rep. Don Clausen, Republican incumbent in the First Congressional District.

George E. McCabe of Santa Rosa, Supervisor Thomas T. Storer of Marin, and Senator Petersen have been mentioned as possible candidates for the

Captain Says He Avoided Ship Explosion

The Norwegian freighter Berganger was ordered full speed ahead seconds before its collision with the tanker Intercontinent, Coast Guard investigators were told yesterday.

Captain Kenneth E. Long, pilot aboard the Berganger, said he ordered the extra speed for maneuverability in order to avoid an explosion on the oil tanker when the collision appeared unavoidable. He said that if he hadn't so maneuvered the Berganger would have hit the tanker amidship and an explosion would probably have resulted.

The collision near the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge Wednesday ripped a 30-foot-wide hole from the water line to the bridge on the starboard side of the Berganger. The Intercontinent suffered a 15-foot gash in her bow.

Britain Suspends Aden Liberties

LONDON (UPI)—Britain today suspended the constitution in the Arabian Peninsula protectorate of Aden to try to halt the wave of terrorism, assassinations and attacks on British servicemen.

The order by Queen Elizabeth II empowered British High Commissioner Sir Richard Turnbull to govern the state on his own.

The terrorist attacks were climaxed Sept. 1 by the assassination of Sir Arthur Charles, British speaker of the Aden staze legislative council. He was shot as he was leaving a tennis club.

Flames Gut Main Street Tiburon Home

Flames gutted three rooms and half the roof of a 50-year-old wood building on Main Street in Tiburon early this morning.

The blaze, reported at 3:40 a.m. today, was in a single-story house at 118 Main Street, owned by Fred G. Zelinsky.

Four college students, Bruce Henson, Thomas White, William Gardiner and Wes Morrell, were tenants in the structure but none was at home during the fire, reported the Tiburon Fire Department.

The blaze which started near a hot water heater, sent flames leaping more than 40 feet above the roof of the house, said Capt. Edward J. Parnell of the Tiburon Fire Department.

"The surrounding buildings are also very old wooden structures, some only 10 feet away from the building which burned. We were very much afraid of the fire spreading," he added.

Flames were kept in three of the five rooms in the building. Three trucks and 20 men fought the blaze. Parnell was treated for a minor eye injurie caused by a burning cinder.

No estimate of damage to the building and contents has been made.

Three Ex-Felons Are Still Held In Jail Cells

Three convicts—questioned in the Labor Day holdup-murder of San Rafael bartender Mario Ferrari — remained in custody today on suspicion of parole violation.

Harold Frank Purcell, 24, of San Francisco is being held in the county jail in San Rafael. In custody in San Francisco are Jack Gorman, 36, arrested by San Francisco police, and March Charles Osuna, 30, arrested in San Diego.

Inspector Thomas Cheetham of San Rafael police characterized their questioning in the Ferrari murder as "routine." It was stressed that the three men are being held as parole violators.

Ferrari was shot at the Mission Inn when he ran from the dining room during the holdup.

Dedication Held Despite Slide

OROVILLE (AP) — A mammoth landslide blocked an access road to the Bidwell Bar Bridge over the Feather River, but dedication ceremonies for the nation's highest highway suspension bridge went on today anyway.

A slide late Friday dumped several tons of rock and debris on the rural Feather River Road leading to the north end of the $4.5 million structure, 20 miles north of Oroville. No one was injured.

State, county and city officials were joined in the dedication ceremonies by William E. Warne, director of the State Department of Water Resources.

DANCING—Mrs. John F. Kennedy dances last night in Boston with Massachusetts Gov. John A. Volpe at Boston Symphony Hall. It was a $1,000-a-box ball as a benefit for the symphony. Mrs. Kennedy was honorary chairman. (UPI Telephoto)

Mrs. Kennedy 'Comes Out' At Boston Ball

BOSTON (UPI)—An elegant Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy last night made a triumphant return to the world of society at Boston's grandest ball since 1860.

Kleig lights and policemen on horseback gave Mrs. Kennedy's dramatic entry into Boston Symphony Hall the glitter of a Hollywood premiere.

GREEN DRESS

The former first lady went directly from Symphony Hall to her hotel, where she changed into a white sheath dress for a trip by car to the Kennedy compound at Hyannisport.

Mrs. Kennedy, making her first public appearance in Boston since her husband was assassinated 22 months ago, danced to three waltzes played by Arthur Fiedler's Boston Pops Orchestra.

COMING OUT

About 700 persons contributed $150,000 to the 85-year-old Boston Symphony Orchestra to attend Mrs. Kennedy's "coming out" from the seclusion which followed her husband's death.

"It's just beautiful," Mrs. Kennedy said of the lavishly decorated hall, with its canopied court palms and hundreds of roses.

Tickets to the ball, at $150 per person and $1,000 for a box, had been quickly snapped up when Mrs. Kennedy was named honorary chairman of the event.

A number of the socially prominent commented that the benefit ball surpassed any social event since 1860, when a 38-course dinner was held in honor of Albert Edward, Prince of Wales.

Westmoreland Defends Use Of Tear Gas

South Vietnamese Outpost Recently Overrun By Reds

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) —A U.S. Marine officer who directed his troops to use tear gas during a military operation early this month has been "exonerated," Gen. William C. Westmoreland said today.

Westmoreland, who is commander of all U.S. forces in Viet Nam, declined to discuss further the incident involving Lt. Col. Leon N. Utter of Fallbrook (San Diego County), a Marine battalion commander.

Utter instructed his men to use non-lethal tear gas to force Viet Congfrom underground fortifications near Qui Nhon. The guerrillas had taken refuge among a large number of civilians, many of them women and children.

Utter was quoted as saying he took the action as the most humane way of dealing with the situation.

On the fighting front South Vietnamese forces recaptured an outpost overrun by Communist guerrilas in a big assault two days ago, a U.S. military spokesman said today.

The Communists stormed the outpost Thursday in the central coastal province of Binh Dinh about 300 miles northeast of Saigon. The Viet Cong then launched a regimental-sized assault north of Qui Nhon against a government force.

The government forces met no resistance yesterday when they retook the outpost, the spokesman said.

Vietnamese sources reported 600 Communist guerrillas were killed in the fighting although only 70 bodies were counted today. They said 500 of the dead were victims of air strikes. U.S. military authorities have not confirmed the figure.

REMOVING DEAD

One unconfirmed report from the scene said the Viet Cong were attempting to remove their dead. Other reports said 170 bodies of Viet Cong were lying in the open.

The heaviest fighting raged near the district town of Bong Son. No further contact was reported.

Four F-105 Thunderchiefs dropped psychological warfare leaflets yesterday into wind currents that carried them over Haiphon, a city of 365,000.

It was the first time planes dropped such leaflets on the seaport and it also was the first successful mission of its kind in the Viet Nam war, he added.

The leaflets contained messages claiming that the Hanoi government is trading rice for weapons with Communist China. Previous drops on smaller cities have carried similar messages, but usually the leaflets have missed their intended targets.

Guam-based B-52s staged their 32nd reported raid of the war today, striking suspected guerrilla positions in Quang Ngai Province on the coast 325 miles north of Saigon, a U.S. military spokesman said.

The attack followed a raid by the eight-engine planes Friday against Viet Cong jungle fortifications 20 miles north of Saigon. Spokesmen have said the B52 raids may continue on a daily basis.

Speedy Commuter Trains Proposed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — High speed commuter trains operated by a state transit authority on tracks owned by private railroads are seen as a must by one California State Public Utilities commissioner.

William M. Bennett, of Kentfield, claims that a statewide agency with power to take over rails idled by abandonment of passenger service by the railroads is the only logical way to handle the growing transit problems in the state.

In an interview yesterday, he gave a preview of a talk he will make tonight to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers at Winslow, Ariz.

Bennett said that San Francisco by 1980 will have a commuter radius that will stretch from Sacramento to King City in the Salinas Valley.

Trains traveling at speeds higher than 170 miles an hour will be needed to connect with the Bay Area Rapid Transit system, which now is under construction in Contra Costa, Alameda and San Francisco counties.

Bennett said his proposal of using railroad rights-of-way would greatly cut public subsidy costs of the statewide transit system he envisions.

At the same time he delivered a scathing attack on railroad policy.

"The railroads of California are boldly breaching the promise they made to the state and its people, and are insisting on the self-serving standard that they shall serve only if there is a profit in each incident of service," Bennett declared.

If electric, gas and telephone services adopted such a policy "there would be no gas, electric or telephone utility service beyond the coastal regions of California save in the heavily settled valley areas," he added.

Specifically citing Southern Pacific's appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission from a PUC decision banning an increase in commuter fares on the San Francisco Peninsula, Bennett said the railroads have done little to meet their public responsibilities.

He said 33 California passenger train discontinuances since 1950 have resulted in annual savings to railroads of $13.3 million.

Reagan, Christopher Fire A Few Salvos

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The two leading Republican contenders for California's governorship battled for support today from the influential GOP State Central Committee on an anti-Communist line.

Both hoped to gain attention of the 1,065-member ruling body of the regular party in its final session before next June's primary election.

Actor Ronald Reagan, the front-runner, issued his first complete statement outlining his position on the staunchly anti-Communist John Birch Society since he began considering a bid for the state's top office.

Meanwhile, George Christopher, former San Francisco mayor, said that Reagan was a one-time member of "three Communist fronts"—which he did not name—while Christopher's Greek relatives were being shot by Communists.

Other potential candidates, including former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight and former U.S. District Attorney Laughlin Waters were hard put to compete with the leaders.

Reagan's statement, issued last night on the eve of the Central Committee's two-day meeting, fell short of an outright repudiation of support of the Birch society, but assailed Robert Welch, JBS president and founder.

"I have never been and I am not now a member of the John Birch Society," Reagan said, "nor do I have any intention of ever becoming a member. I have never sought Birch Society support nor do I have any intention of doing so should I become a candidate for public office."

But he said members of the society "have a decision to make" concerning Welch, whom he accused of making "reckless and imprudent statements."

Noting that the California Senate Committee on Un-American Activities had said the Birch Society since 1963 had attracted a "lunatic fringe," Reagan said the JBS should "maintain vigilance to see that this element does not use the society for witch-hunting, anti-Semitism, or any other un-American activity."

Christopher's statement that Reagan had belonged to Communist fronts came in reply to a newsman's comment tnat he had been told Reagan had been accusing Christopher of being "soft on Communism."

Obviously shaken, Christopher fired back: "While Mr. Reagan was a member of three various Communist fronts, when he was involved, my relatives were being shot down in the old country by Communists and being buried in one common grave . . . I detest Communists."

AWOL Soldier Nabbed In Sausalito Burglary

An AWOL soldier from Fort Gordon, Ga., was arrested by Sausalito police yesterday after he was caught attempting to burgle the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Ramsey, 214 Bulkley Avenue.

The brassy 17-year-old, who gave his address as Tiburon, was placed in juvenile hall on suspicion of burglary and with holds for the military.

Police said he is a California Youth Authority parolee for burglary and felony assault charges, that he allegedly commited a burglary in Waxachahie, Tex., while en route from Georgia to California and that he held a stolen credit card in Waxachahie.

Mrs. Ramsey told police she was taking a nap in a second floor bedroom when the door bell rang. She did not answer it.

Then she heard the front door open and heard someone walk up to the second floor. She waited, then walked out and caught the suspect ransacking dresser drawers in another bedroom, officer Herbert Smith reported.

"What are you doing?" she asked. He replied that this was his house, he lived in it and was getting some clothing. Mrs. Ramsey, said Smith, answered that "this is my house."

At this, the youth ran down the stairs and out the front door, taking nothing. Mrs. Ramsey called police at 1:40 p.m. giving the young man's description. He was apprehended at Bridgeway and Pine Street.

Court Orders Mime Troupe From Sausalito Quarters

The San Francisco Mime Troupe yesterday was quietly kicked out of Sausalito's Gate Theater, scene of its minstrel show and other performances since a re-opening last Aug. 12.

The ouster came in the form of an order of possession by owners of the building at 668 Bridgeway, signed by Judge Leonard A. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court.

It directed sheriff's officers to put owners Desmond F. Mordant and his wife, Rachael, in "quiet and peaceful possession" of the theater.

Complaint against the troupe and its business manager, Bill Graham, allegd a week-to-week $75 rental agreement between the troupe and the Mordants ended when the former was given notice of eviction Sept. 16, starting date for a four-nights-weekly performance of "Il Candelaio" which was scheduled to run through Oct. 3.

The troupe "wilfully failed and refused and now refuses to vacate said premises," the complaint sharged, and has paid only $375 in rent to date, with $525 still due. It asks restitution of the building, the $525, and cost of the suit.

The play, "Il Candelaio" by Giordano Bruno, caused consternation among state authorities when it was produced by the troupe at Mount Tamalpais Amphitheater last month. It has been described as"a social satire" but also "indecent and vulgar."

Bay might well be needed.

Percy says that "one of the first considerations which must be taken into account is that the existing facility jointly operated by the county and (Harry O.) Tollefson Aviation is completely inadequate and does not serve today's needs."

Percy knocks down the idea of bringing large commercial aircraft into the county on regularly scheduled flights. This type of operation needs central facilities which are adequately provided at San Francisco International Airport, he says.

Supervisors will receive Percy's report Tuesday and are expected to set discussion of it for the Oct. 5 meeting.

The board Tuesday will also receive a report on the FAA's turndown of an application for $190,000 in federal money for development of the airport at Novato.

The federal agency turned down the grant because the county lease with Tollefson gives him exclusive right to provide airport facilities. The lease runs until 1972.

ANN HALPRIN
Warsaw frowns on nudes.

Marin Dancer Deplores Order On Nude Scene

Officials of an arts festival in Warsaw, Poland, stepped in last night to ban nude scenes performed by the San Francisco Modern Dance Workshop, directed by Ann Halprin of Kentfield.

It left Mrs. Halprin with a feeling of frustration. "It is cheating . . . a compromise with artistic purity," she said of the dance "Parade and Changes."

At the end of each of the scenes, her male and female dancers wore hardly enough to cover the embarrassment of officials of the sponsoring Warsaw Autumn Festival.

"We were told that careers would be ruined and the festival might even be stopped if we went ahead. So we omitted the scenes," she said. The company has also omitted the nude scenes in California performances.

Reports from Stockholm said the show there caused no sensation and the naked act was applauded by critics as "pure and free from erotic and stimulating effects."

Two Ask Denial Of Viet Group's Plan For Rally

The Marin Viet Nam Committee has planned a rally on the county courthouse steps for noon Oct. 16, but two county officials have asked the county supervisors to refuse permission.

Alicia Moore of Woodacre wrote supervisors on behalf of the committee seeking permission for the rally.

County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost has recommended denial. He cited damage to the courthouse lawn at a recent battle of the bands which was called to an early halt because of rowdiness.

Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows has also asked denial, but did not cite any reasons other than Frost's letter.

Auto Strikes Wall; Two Hurt

Two Marin County youths were injured at 12:25 a.m. today when the car they were in hit a concrete wall on Paradise Drive near Trestle Glen Drive.

Linda L. Bauman, 17, of 4065 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, and Brent R. Scheiner, 17, of 293 Corte Madera Boulevard, Mill Valley, were treated for minor injuries and released from Marin General Hospital after the accident.

Scheiner was driving east on Paradise Drive when he failed to turn right with the road and smashed into a concrete guard wall. The car rolled over at the side of the road, reported the California Highway Patrol.

Driver Swerves, Car Smashes Sign

Phillip R. Talley, 25, of 260 Merrydale Road, San Rafael, was treated and released from Marin General Hospital early today after receiving minor injuries when his car ran off the road on Highway 101.

Talley was northbound on 101 when he decided at the last minute to turn off at the Santa Venetia exit, reported the California Highway Patrol.

Mystery Boy Identified; But Parents Gone

MIAMI (UPI)—A speechless "mystery boy" found wandering in the Miami airport was identified today as a mentally retarded Michigan teen-ager whose mother brought him here to put him in a special school.

Barron Shields, an officer of the Miami Juvenile Court, said authorities are still trying to determine why the boy apparently was abandoned in the airport concourse.

The boy's older sister and a neighbor telephoned police in nearby Troy, Mich., today and identified the sad-faced boy from a newspaper picture.

They said he was Ricky Thorne, 14, a factory worker's son who became mentally retarded from injuries suffered in a traffic accident two years ago.

Troy police said they had been unable to locate Ricky's parents, Victor and Mayne Thorne. Officers said the boy's sister, Mrs. Donna Ruby who also lives in the Detroit area, was surprised to hear her parents were not home.

The identification apparently squelched the theories of a man who claimed to be the boy's grandfather and a woman who sought to learn if he was her missing son.

Both the man and woman were flying to Miami today from Texas.

Bagley, Collier, Petersen and Sen. Joseph Rattigan of Sonoma County appeared on a panel to discuss various problems of the Redwood Empire. Jack Merelman of Sacramento, legal counsel for the County Supervisors Assn. of California, was moderator.

Bolinas District Takes First Step In Utility Merger

The Bolinas Public Utilities District took its first steps yesterday toward merger with the Bolinas Beach Public Utilities District.

Merger of the two has been discussed informally for some time. Last night at its regular meeting the Bolinas district asked Assistant County Counsel Richard Godino to outline the steps needed to combine them.

The district received seven bids for installation of a water pipeline from the water tank near Terrace Avenue to Park Avenue. The low bid of $17.134, by Charles Cunningham, Inc., was turned over to the district engineers for review.

A public hearing was set for 7:30 p.m. Nov. 5 at the district office on a proposal to annex five peices of property, totaling about 50 acres, whose owners have requested water service.

Cassidy said representatives of the union and management met this week but the meeting was adjourned for the union to gain legal clarification of certain points. He said the meeting will reconvene Wednesday.

The council has referred to its executive committee a request from the union for strike sanction against the Independent-Journal.

if these people are not breaking the law."

Said a husband: "Police get here soon enough when the complaint is about kids playing ball. But when they're adults . . ."

Explained another: "The chief of San Rafael police visited us personally after he had received so many complaints.

"I can tell you I don't feel very safe when all he could recommend was that we should keep our doors and windows locked. Now many of us put padlocks on our mailboxes."

One angry housewife said: "The chief said that if anything was written about this in the newspapers, it would glorify the gang and make them feel big. We don't want this neighborhood opened up to any more of them."

All was quiet at No. 225 yesterday. The house is normally occupied by two women, one man and four children, said people who live nearby.

Police Chief Charles Chiesa said yesterday he had doubled the car patrols along this street "to keep the peace" since complaints started coming in two months ago.

"What can we do if everything is quiet when we arrive?" he asked. "Running across someone's lawn is not a crime, unless somebody files a complaint."

The people who were to blame came from outside the area, he said. Many of them wore clothes with the Hell's Angels insignia.

Earlier yesterday, San Francisco police broke up a Hell's Angels get-together but not before two patrolmen had been hustled out of the party by the gang.

CDC Session Draws Big Novato Crowd

A record turnout of top brass from California Democratic Council clubs met in Novato today for the first session of a day-long meeting of the First Congressional District.

More than 40 presidents and other officers of clubs in six counties were addressed by the council president, Simon Casady, before discussing the formation of a First District Council of CDC.

S. Robert Politzer of Sausalito, a CDC representative, presided at the meeting at Lodge 8141, Redwood Highway.

"We only expected about 15 officers at this meeting," said Robert D. Carrow of Novato, who is in charge of arrangements, "and on the basis of this turnout there should be about 250 people at the general session later today."

State Sen. Frank S. Petersen of Ukiah was the scheduled speaker at the afternoon session on legislative reapportionment. Democratic office holders are due to be honored at a reception at 5 p.m.

The men were serving terms for armed robbery when they escaped using a hook and line over the prison wall.

There was no further report on two convicted killers, Jimmie L. Bushbaum, 20, and Arthur G. Jones, 32, who fled from the prison's minimum security area Sept. 16.

Dona Sanz-Pastor is the director of the Cerralbo Museum in Madrid and is an inspector of Fine Arts Museums in all Spain. Also visiting the Manns from Spain has been Mrs. Rodger W. Mrs. Lancaster is a retired school teacher and Mr. Lancaster is a retired contractor. They have been touring the country in a trailer and spent nine days with Mr. and Mrs. Onderdonk.

The Lancasters are also visiting four other daughters in New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Indiana and Detroit, having first traveled the east coast into Canada and then south to Novato.

HOME FROM A SUMMER-LONG trip to Chile is Eleanor Watkins, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Watkins of Belvedere. Eleanor traveled from Santiago in the south to Arica in northern Chile. In Arica she was the guest of the family of Ximena Barrientos Torres, former Redwood High School American Field Service exchange student. In Vina del Mar Eleanor was entertained by Dr. Herman Lillio, chairman of the sister city committee which has people to people ties with Sausalito. Eleanor and Ximena addressed the people of Chile on a nationwide broadcast, and the two girls took additional trips to Bolivia and Peru during the summer. Eleanor will enroll at Stanford as a freshman.

Janet Broman, daughter of the John Bromans of Mill Valley, is enrolling at Mills College in Oakland this week. A freshman, she will live in Olney Hall.

This is the first time away from home for her, but not for her brother Chris, who has postponed graduation for side trips to Mexico and New York and living on his own in Sausalito. This fall he will complete his studies at Sonoma State College. Both good students, Janet and Chris wish to become teachers.

Thames Just A Day's Trip From Marvelous Marin

LONDON—Just a single day's journey from Marin can carry you to the banks of the River Thames.

Pan American Airways now has 10 scheduled flights a week from the Pacific Coast via the so-called "polar" route direct to London. All except one originate at San Francisco, but they stop to pick up passengers at Los Angeles or Seattle before the long nonstop hop.

On a typical trip, you board the plane in San Francisco at 10 a.m. and make a stop for passengers at Los Angeles. Soon after noon you are finally on your way again to London.

If you are lucky and have good weather, you will get a glimpse of the Mohave desert as you head northeast. Almost before you know it, you are over colorful Bryce Canyon National Park in Utah. Next you cross high above the Rocky Mountains emerging over the Great Plains about at Denver. Before long the pilot reports passing over Duluth and you know you are leaving the U.S.A. The scenery now is sub-arctic tundra.

By 4 p.m. (Pacific Coast time) dusk settles. By 5 p.m. the earth below is pitch black but you can still see the deep red glow of sunset far to the southwest behind.

PAN AMERICAN'S flight maps for passengers indicate that during the night you fly by the southern-most tip of Hudson Bay, the southern-most tip of Greenland, far south of Iceland and almost directly over Shannon, Ireland, heading southeast to London.

The so-called "polar" route actually doesn't come within a thousand miles of the North Pole. In fact, it doesn't even come close to the Arctic Circle. It is a great circle route all right, but it is NOT really a polar route at all.

The direct airline distance from Los Angeles to London is approximately 5,500 miles. East-bound Pan American flights swing some distance south of the shortest route in order to take advantage of tailwinds up to 100 miles an hour.

The detour stretches the flight to about 5,800 miles, but, as the pilot explains, "we get a 700-mile free ride—the wind blows us that far." The Jet Clipper flies through only 5,100 miles of air to cover the 5,500 ground miles from Los Angeles to London; the air itself moves the additional 700 miles bearing the plane with it.

After lunch during daylight and dinner after dark, the first gray streaks of dawn appear and your watch tells you it's only 9:45 Pacific Coast time. Moments later you get your first glimpse of the London airport. It's 5:45 a.m. London time.

Leaving Los Angeles, the pilot estimated 9 hours and 19 minutes flying time to London. His prediction turns out to be accurate within three minutes.

PRESENT DAY TRANS-ATLANTIC jet planes are divided into a small compartment forward for the aristocracy and a large area aft for peasants.

The aristocratic section has almost as many stewardesses as passengers, but the vacant seats outnumber both passengers and stewardesses together. These are euphemistically called first class and economy sections.

The peasant section isn't exactly a pocket of poverty. Prelunch and predinner cocktails are 50 cents. A split of French champagne is $1. French wine is only 25 cents for a split bottle. Premium beer is 25 cents per bottle. The peasants get fine meals and cigarettes included in the price of their fare. The aristocracy gets a higher caloric diet and all the liquor the law allows included in the first class fare, a mere $396.10 more than the "basic economy class jet" for a round-trip ticket from San Francisco to London.

No wonder most of the first class compartment seats are empty. A person would have to have more dollars than sense to ride there.

FLYING OVER LONDON inevitably brings to mind the dark days of the blitz and the buzz-bombs. From the air, London is as picturesque as it is from the ground. You have to look very closely to see any remaining signs of war damage.

The shadow of the blitz still hovers over London, nevertheless.

You cannot go into the subway (called "underground" by Londoners) without remembering how thousands upon thousands of brave Britons stayed there night after night defying the mighty Luftwaffe's all-out effort to crush and demoralize the Englishmen.

In the dead of night, when traffic noise has subsided, the sound of an airplane droning through the darkness over London can give you a chill. For a fleeting instant you think you can understand both the fear and the courage of the thousands of civilians who endured London's great blitz.

YOU CAN'T EAT MANY meals in London without speculating about the development of Britain's famous Sheffield steel.

It probably was a case of necessity being the mother of invention, as the saying goes.

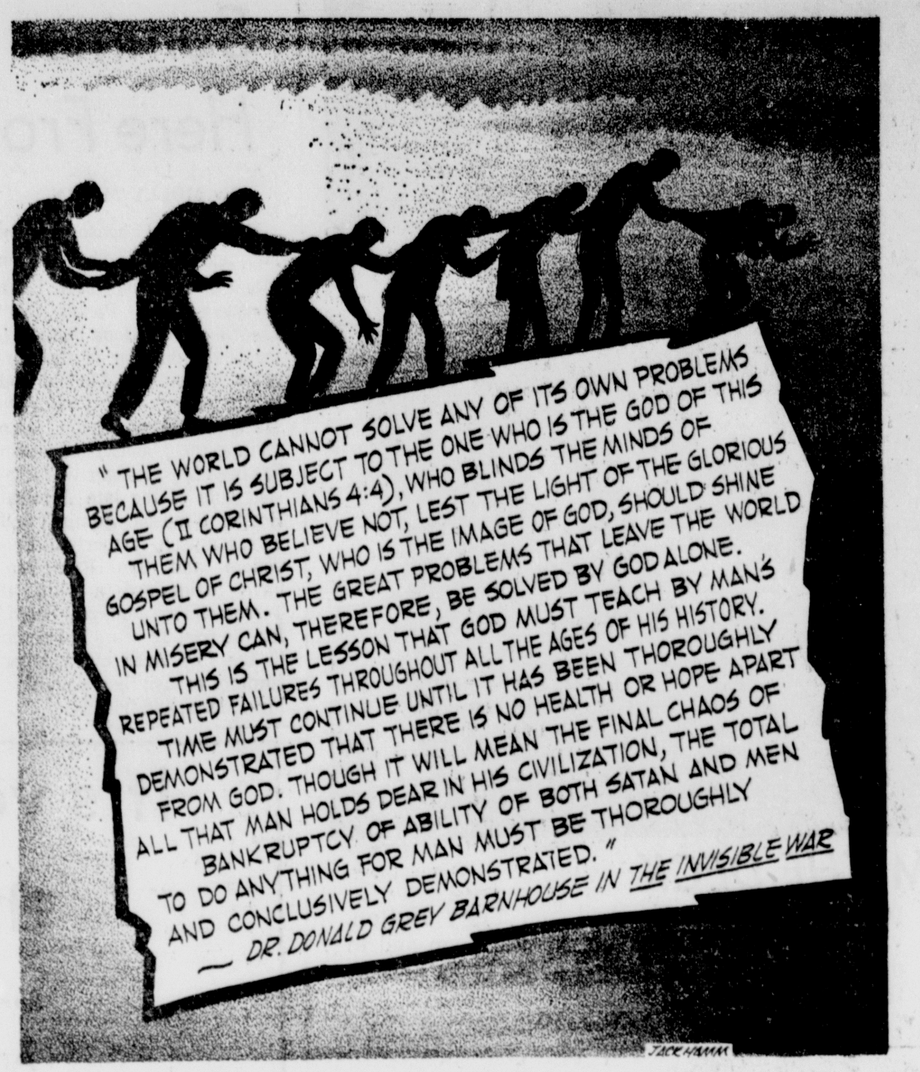

Surely nowhere on earth can roast beef be sliced so thin as in a London restaurant.

It's a tribute both to British technology and the dexterity of the carvers. In order to get the beef cut so thin they have to have superb cutlery, like Sheffield, and superb handling of the knife. And they have both in abundance.

Tender and juicy, London roast beef is unsurpassed—what you get of it.

SOMETHING TO CONSIDER

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

A Citizen's Opinion Of Flautt Exception

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to commend your Stephen Cook for what I consider a superlative job of objective reporting. I have reference to Mr. Cook's article in the Sept. 15, 1965, issue of the I-J dealing with the action taken by San Anselmo City Council in regards to the residency requirement of our City Administrator ordinance. Mr. Cook certainly placed this situation in its proper perspective and his statement, "Hub citizens nearly unanimous against Flautt exception" sums it up pretty well. It was unfortunate that three of our councilmen were apparently unimpressed with the fact that there was such widespread opposition amongst the electorate to any change in the residency requirement. By the same token, it is indeed most fortunate that those of us who wanted to uphold the ordinance as originally enacted (by a unanimous Council vote) can so express ourselves when we mark our ballots in the local election next April.

Larkspur Policeman Praised For Actions

Editor, Independent-Jounrnal:

Larkspur Police Officer Alasdair Wilson McDonald deserves the praise and gratitude of the residents of Marin County for his outstanding performance of the duties of a guardian of Law and order. Apparently while off duty and outside the limits of Larkspur he was possessed of the alertness to notice a rear door of a restaurant open. He stopped, saw two youth attempting to open a safe, entered and arrested their efforts. When one made a break he fired four times without hitting him.

Within a short time the same alert oficer apprehended the escapee in a strange car in the hills of Kentfield and made his arrest final.

I am glad, as it turned out, that officer McDonald did not land a shot but cannot but wonder what a cry would have been raised if he had done so.

He must have wondered subconsciously about the same question, but despite the possible charge of murder and while off duty and outside his balliwick he acted promptly and courageously.

Let us create an atmosphere which will encourage more Alasdair McDonalds. I think he deserves one of your most special bouquets.

Political Do-Gooders And Fabian Socialism

Editor, Independent-Journal:

With local "community leaders" fighting each other to exert control over money to be doled out in various "poverty programs," it is interesting to read what George Bernard Shaw had to say about Socialism.

Shaw was one of the founders, along with Sidney and Beatrice Webb, of the British Fabian Socialist Society, and as reported in John Stormer's book "None Dare Call it Treason," Shaw insists that ". . . . under Socialism you would not be allowed to be poor. You would be forcibly fed, clothed, lodged, taught, and employed whether you liked it or not. And if it were discovered you were not worth all this trouble, you might possibly be executed in a kindly manner; but whilst you were permitted to live you would have to live well." He further stated that ". . . he was a communist, and that the revolutionary element in society comes from the middle and upper classes, while the working classes are the conservative element."

I submit that the political do-gooders in our society today, knowingly or un-knowingly, are pushing for a realization of Shaw's dream and Lenin's conspiracy, and at the expense of the poor who don't seem to realize what is happening to them.

Freedom Workers' Parents Say Thanks

Editor, Independent-Journal:

"Some of my best friends are in Mississippi" says one of the buttons the young people sport; and among those friends are the brave people of the Negro communities of Carroll County and Sunflower County, who are trying to secure their right to vote, to assemble peaceably, and to send their children to decent public schools. It was they who were the beneficiaries of a party recently sponsored by Marin Parents (and friends) of Mississippi Volunteers. The Parents wish to thank all those who with their generous contributions made the party a success.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Risley have asked me to thank those who made donations to replace their volunteer son's camera, smashed when he was attacked by white thugs in Americus, Ga.

The camera was replaced with other funds, so these monies were added to the proceeds of the party, which have been sent to Freedom Democratic Party projects in Sunflower County and Carrol County, where Margaret Kibbee and Martha Olson are working.

The Parents especially thank the Independent-Journal for its coverage of the Marin youths' work in the deep south. As they say in their letters home — "Yours for freedom,"

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Ballot Cuts Adenaur's Strings On Ludwig Erhard Government

BONN—Ludwig Erhard, his coalition government comfortably returned to power, is now released from the shackles and shadow of the venerable Konrad Adenauer.

Dr. Erhard, the bouncy economics professor who did more than anyone else to shape Germany's postwar prosperity, became Chancellor two years ago with the reluctant retirement of the aging Adenauer—and his disapproval.

Today Erhard is Chancellor in his own right under his own steam with the evident approval of the German voters.

WHEN THE RULING Christian Democrats picked Erhard to lead the party two years ago, Adenauer let it be publicly known that he did not think Erhard qualified for the job of Chancellor.

Today the German people have rendered their verdict that he is qualified and have given him a higher vote of confidence than they gave Dr. Adenauer in the last election—a 2 per cent increase in the total popular vote and, tentatively, four more seats in the parliament. Adenauer got 45 per cent in 1961; Erhard got 47.5 per cent this week.

Clinging to power beyond his time, Adenauer probably thought no one qualified to succeed him.

Erhard's newly won freedom from the embarrassing and interfering elbowing by Adenauer is one of the most significant consequences of the election.

HE WILL BE presiding over a more united party and, therefore, over a more united government.

He will be freer to stand up to Gen. de Gaulle in de Gaulle's two central assaults on German policy, the attempt to destroy NATO and the attempt to turn back the clock of the Common Market.

Erhard is a dedicated supporter of free trade in Europe and between Europe and the other Atlantic nations. He wants to see Britain in the Common Market. He wants a closer economic relationship with Scandinavia and the other non-members of the Market.

On all of these issue, on which France under de Gaulle and Germany have differed deeply, Erhard's disposition has always been to push for European integration, to welcome British membership, and to resist de Gaulle's effort to undo nearly everything that has been done since the end of World War II.

Erhard is now far freer to be himself and to press for his objectives without being constantly hampered and heckled by Adenauer.

Adenauer's pro-Gaullist influence is appreciably reduced. Erhard's independence from that influence is substantially increased, perhaps completely assured.

THE ELECTION shows Germany's post-war democracy continuing to function smoothly and with a high degree of stability.

Nearly 87 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls. Few if any other countries vote so high a percentage of the electo-rate. The Germans are eagerly using their democratic rights.

Splinter parties were repudiated more decisively than in any postwar election, including the newly-formed semi-Nazi National Democratic Party.

THE MAJOR opposition party—the SPD, the once socialist and now only mildly reformist Social Democrats, and today more conservative than the British Labor party — gained strength, but not enough. It remains formidable and gives Germany a well-balanced electorate.

BARKER ON CHINA

Peking's Pipe-Dream For World Conquest

By GEORGE BARKER

MARSHAL LIN PIAO, China's Minister of Defense and one of the men spoken of as a possible successor to Mao, wrote an article which was published in newspapers and magazines all over China on Sept. 3. It has been trumpeted in the American press as a "blueprint for Communist conquest." I have read the complete English translation and several commentaries on it, and it strikes me as being more of a pipe dream than a blueprint.

Published for the 20th anniversary of V-J Day, its theme is: We clever Chinese Reds under the inspired leadership of Mao beat the Japanese in World War II and by using the same strategy Communism can conquer the world. It is typically full of Chinese Red bombast, bristling with "revolutionary spirit" which is a kind of Marxist positive thinking ("We will win because the truth is on our side.") and about a third of it consists of warmed - over attacks on Khrushchev revisionism.

From a literary standpoint, the article is a weird mishmash, a nightmare of Mao-worship and cliches. It is frightening in that it says wars are not necessarily bad. But mainly it is just plain ludicrous.

Marshal Lin's major premise is a good example of what I mean by ludicrous. He virtually says that the Red Chinese won the war against Japan single - handedly. He rewrites history, leaving out the U. S., Britain, the Soviet Union, the Chinese Nationalists and certain Red Chinese leaders who have since fallen from favor. It was Mao's rag-tag forces that won the war, using baling wire, captured weapons and the inspired thoughts of their leader.

MAO'S CLEVER strategy, according to Marshal Lin, consisted of making the peasantry and the rural areas their base of operations from which they later engulfed the cities. Projecting this thesis, which worked in China, to a global strategy, Lin claims that Asia, Africa and Latin America are analogous to the rural areas of the world. The cities are North America and Western Europe. The theory is to win a peasantry-based revolution in Asia, Africa and Latin America and engulf us.

But is it a true analogy? The rural areas of China were where the food was. By capturing the countryside, the Reds were able to weaken the cities by causing food shortages and inflation. But Asia, Africa and Latin America are largely food deficit lands. Many of them, including China, are dependent on grain grown in the "cities." It is an empire of the undernourished, underindustrialized overpopulated countries that China would like to lead. Conditions of distance, of nationalism, of lack of war-making capacity make it seem highly unlikely that they could engulf us, even if they were all to swallow the Peking line, which seems likewise improbable.

This decade the rich nations are getting richer and the poor nations are getting more mouths to feed and poorer. If Marshal Lin ever permits himself a free thought, he must be aware of this. He doubtless would like a global share-the-wealth plan. Our country is uniquely prosperous and we must accept some responsibility for alleviating hunger. But, with the other "cities of the world," we can do it on our own terms and not be exploited by a bunch of indoctrinated peasants.

OH, YES, he accuses the Soviet Union of conspiring with the U. S. to rule the world. In view of the Mao and Lin alternative, it might not be a bad idea.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

WIFE WORKS, HE RESTS

A man who successfully avoided work for 21 years attributes this rare feat to the devotion of his wife.

The 48-year-old resident of Auckland, New Zealand, was brought to court on a charge of being idle and disorderly.

"You seem to have found the solution to a problem which has baffled mankind for centuries—how to live without working," the magistrate told him.

A probation officer then explained that the man's wife worked and provided him with spending money.

"Your mode of living cannot really be called disorderly," the judge commented and so he dismissed the case.

Attractive as the opposite might appear, most people find that work—especially if it is purposeful — brings far more spiritual and temporal benefits than an endless round of leisure.

Give due regard to recreation, but when you are on the job work wholeheartedly, thoroughly and with the view of pleasing God and helping your fellow man.

"Present yourself to God as a man approved, a worker that cannot be ashamed."
(2 Timothy 2:15)

Help me, O Lord, to show by my joyful attentiveness to duty that I truly want to serve You and others.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

BEN WASSON, harking back to the days when the first ladies of Virginia still left calling cards on their afternoon rounds, tells of one highly placed Richmond dowager who was breaking in a new footman. "Now you bring along the cards I left on the table," she instructed him, "and leave one card—or two, if I so instruct you — at each residence I visit." Late that afternoon they paused at the home of Richmond's undisputed society queen. "Here," said the dowager, "I want you to leave THREE cards." "Can't do it, mum," declared the footman. "Why not?" demanded the dowager. "'Cause we only has two left," explained the footman. "The ace of clubs and the seven of diamonds."

AN AMBITIOUS neophyte made a date with a Yale dean and said, 'I'd like to arrange a program of studies that will qualify me for a running a whole airline or transcontinental railroad system. How much wil this cost, and approximately how long will it take?"

The dean, a sarcastic old coot, snorted, and replied, "My boy, such a program would cost you thousand of dollars and require approximately six years of intensive study. Now why not cough up about one thousand dollars and spend about three months charming people with a phony television campaign, thereby getting yourself elected to Congress. Once elected, you'll feel fully qualified to run not one, but every airline and railroad system in the country."

REMEMBER WHEN?

20 YEARS AGO

Tomales High School was closed for a week so students could assist in harvesting potatoes.

Robert Austin of San Rafael was appointed to the Marin County Planning Commission to succeed chairman Charles Lund, who announced he would retire.

Harry Braun, president of the Sausalito Chamber of Commerce, was appointed to the Marin County Housing Commission to succeed W. H. Nostrand, a former Mill Valley resident who moved to Oregon.

The 46th annual Grape Festival was held at the Kentfield estate of Mrs. William Kent to raise funds for operation of Sunny Hills Presbyterian Home for Children.

United Nations Power Tips To East

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —In diplomatic language the objective was described as "more equitable representation." But the broad effect of the new amendments to the United Nations charter will be a further power shift from the West to the new countries of Africa and Asia.

They mark a major milestone in the rising influence of the newly independent countries and the decline of the role played by the original members which signed the U.N. charter 20 years ago.

Western diplomats acknowledge that their dominance in the 114-nation General Assembly ended some time ago. Now they will no longer be able to count on automatic majorities in the important Security Council, or the Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC).

Here is the situation that will exist after the two key councils are enlarged Jan. 1 to expand the Security Council from 11 to 15 members and ECOSOC from 18 to 27:

The Asians and Africans now hold 61 of the assembly's 114 seats—a clear majority. Gambia was admitted this fall, bringing the African contingent alone up to 36. Singapore and the Maldive Islands also came up for admission and they were expected to join the Asian group.

In the Security Council, the Asians and Africans are guaranteed five of the 10 elective seats under terms of an assembly decision. This means that they will have the balance of power in the council, which is the U.N. organ primarily responsible for peacekeeping. The new amendments provide that nine affirmative votes will be required for council decisions instead of the seven now needed. Thus, the Asian and African members could join with any four members to approve action and with any two to block decisions.

The five permanent members of the Security Council will continue to have the big power veto, but the power shift could effect its use. For example, if the Asian and African members join the two Communist members in opposing a Western resolution, or even abstain, the proposal would be defeated without a Soviet veto. On the other hand, it becomes more likely that the Western powers may have to rely on the veto in some cases where in the past they had enough votes to block decisions without a veto.

In ECOSOC the Asians and Africans will get seven of the nine new seats and will hold the five they now have. This means that after Jan. 1 they will occupy 12 of the council's 27 seats. Here too they will have the balance of power.

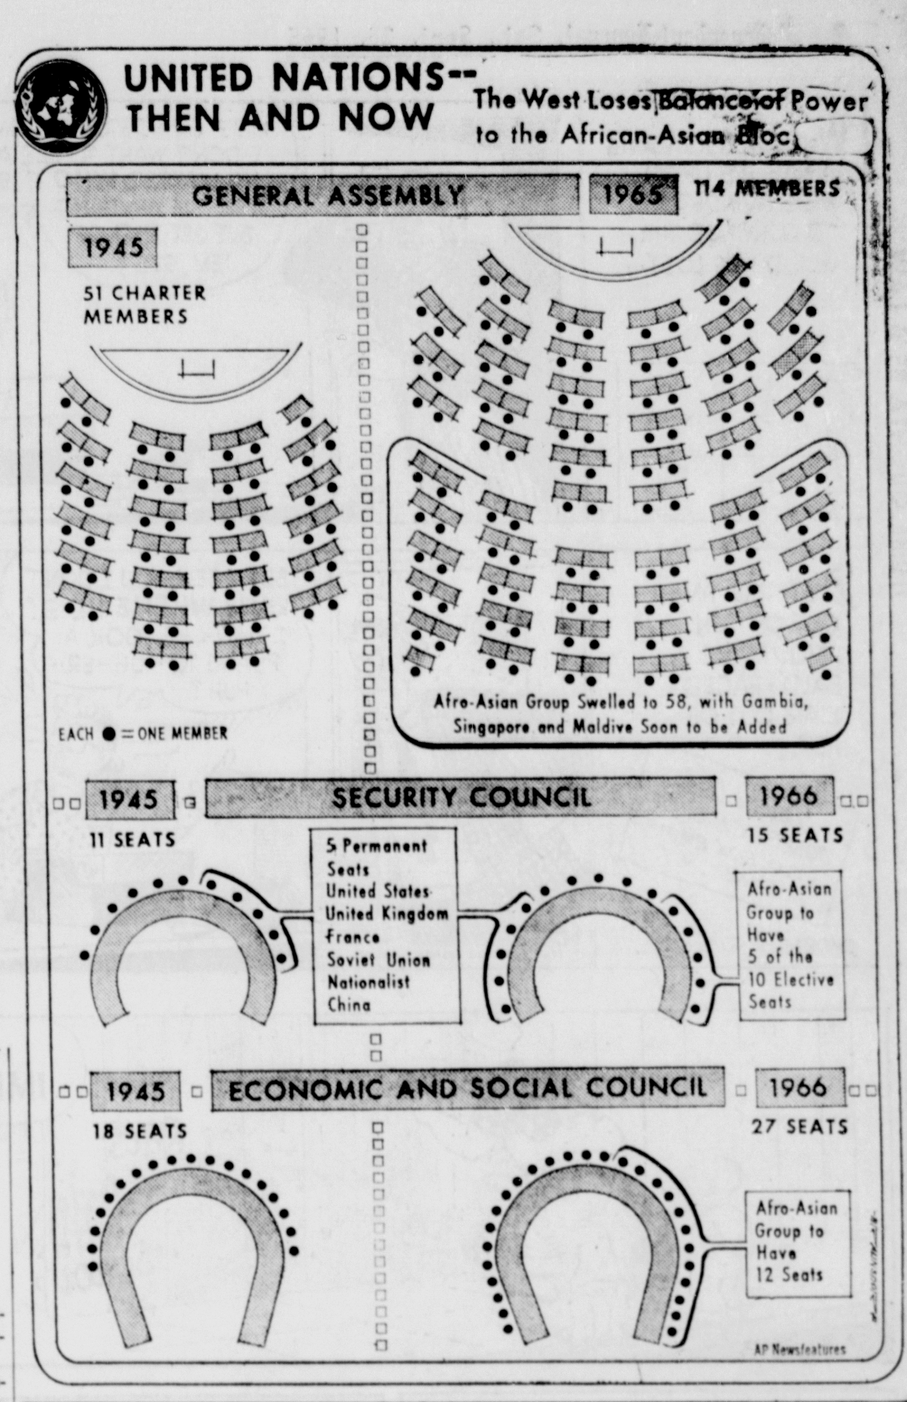

The amendments were the first since the U.N. charter was approved in San Francisco in 1945. They became effective Aug. 31 when the United States deposited its ratification with secretary-general U Thant, but the expansion of the two councils will take place at the beginning of 1966.

Neither the West nor the Soviet Union was enthusiastic about the amendments, but they bowed reluctantly to the overwhelming pressure of the Asians and Africans. The United States had favored some expansion, but felt that the amendments went too far. The Soviet Union had opposed all charter amendments.

When the amendments were initiated by the Assembly two years ago, the Soviet Union and France were among the 11 voting against them. The United States and Britain abstained. But the approval of the big powers was necessary for ratification and in the end they all gave their assent.

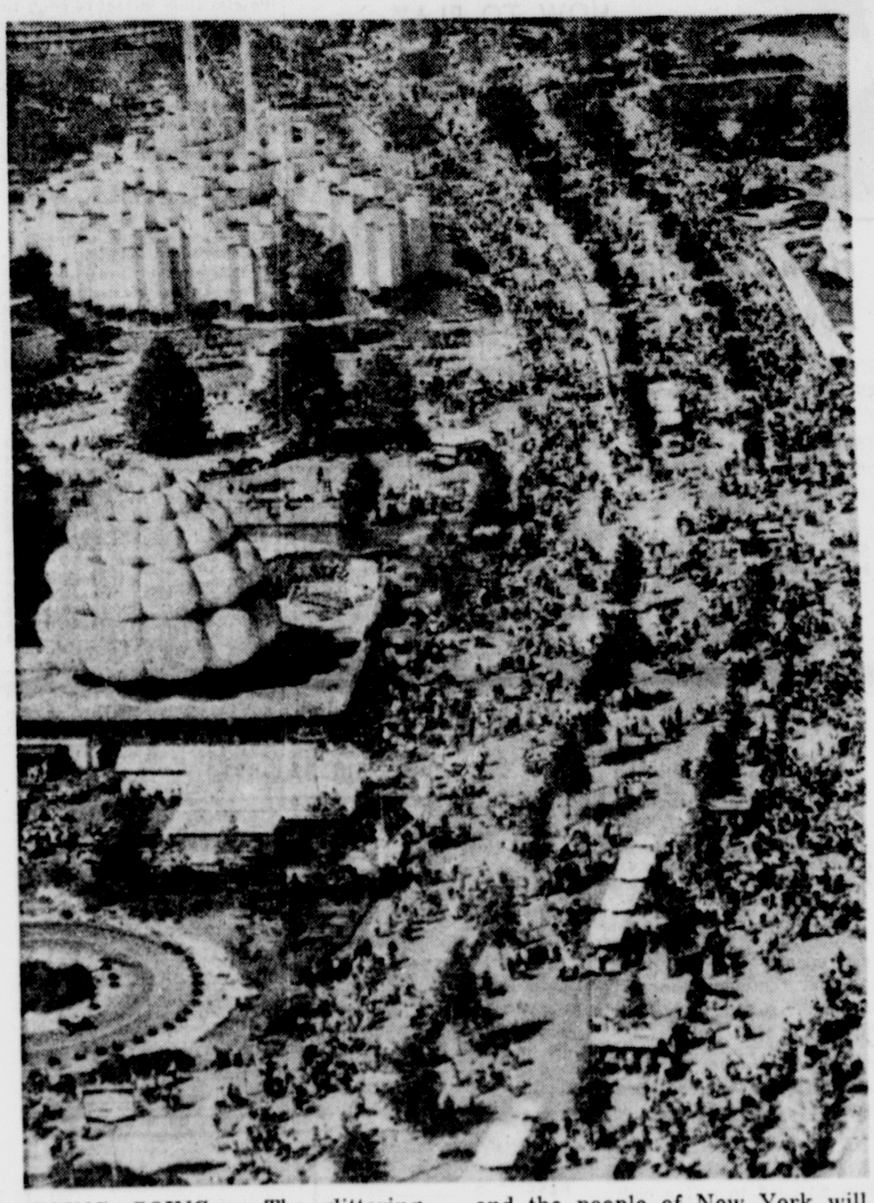

Now the scramble for the new seats has begun. Among candidates for the 10 elective seats on the Security Council are Argentina, Bulgaria, Denmark, Mauritania, New Zealand, Nigeria, Somalia, Syria, Mali and Uganda. Jordan is now on the council as a result of a deal to split a two-year term with Mali. But the deal provided that, if the council was expanded, Jordan would serve the full term and Mali would be elected for a term of its own.

The seat held by Nationalist China is not involved. China is one of the five permanent members, along with the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, and does not have to stand for election. Further, the Taiwan government does not figure in the tally of Asian and African members. It has been excluded from the Asian-African group and does not take part in any of the group's activities.

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

GOING, GOING — The glittering New York World's Fair will close its gates to the public next month—and the wrecking crews will move in. Within a year, all but a handful of its buildings will be cleared away, and the people of New York will have a huge park and recreation area where once was a garbage dump, the United Nations, and presently a billion-dollar exhibition. Worlds Fair Faces Wreckers Less Than A Month From Now

By H. D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — What Moses hath wrought is coming down. Everything must go. Well, almost everything. Anybody care to buy the Beatles (in wax)?

The New York World's Fair, the first billion-dollar exposition in history and the most heavily attended (around 50 million people in two years), will close its gates—on Oct. 17. After that, the wreckers. All but 19 of its more than 150 structures will go, plus their wondrous contents.

Within six months fair President Robert Moses and the New York World's Fair Corp. expect to have the one-square-mile area cleaned out and back in the city's hands as one whiz of a public recreation area—the Flushing Meadows-Corona Park.

Meanwhile, the bargains: buy a smoke-ring machine, anybody? It blows 150 feet high, will go to 1,000 feet with a few minor adjustments ? The world's largest cheddar 17¼ tons, 18 months sharp ? A make-believe breathing, croaking bullfrog? (you can't. Caroline Kennedy's getting it as a gift.)

And don't bother about the Beatles—wax replicas in the Walter's International Wax Museum. Even a wistful scream from a little girl couldn't win one. She wrote in that she couldn't afford all four but had $10 saved and would like to have her favorite, Paul McCartney.

No dice. One man has a $7,000 option to buy all four—"and if he doesn't take it this week, another guy gets them," a Walter's man said.

The smoke machine, producing an 8-foot-diameter ring, was designed as a scientific device to test air turbulence by the M. and W. Developing Co. at a cost of $200,000 but was leased to the General Cigar exhibit. It's being offered for sale at $60,000, and several people are interested — some for advertising, some for science, some for shooting off in stadia when a touchdown is made, and one to scare pigeons in Springfield, Ill.

The Wisconsin pavilion's big cheese, largest ever made, representing a day's output of 16,000 cows, will go for about $35,000 to Borden, which will send it on a very sharp U.S. tour and finally chop it up for sale all over.

The American Machine and Foundry's $5 million monorail, the two-parallel-loop, 14-car high ride around the fair's perimeter, is in amazing demand: an aircraft company, to move personnel building-to-building; several universities, to move students class-to-class; shopping centers, to connect with a common parking; a convention city to connect hotels in a loop with convention hall (step from your balcony into a car).

The Vatican pavilion has been accepting sale bids on art works since July 1. Michelangelo's Pieta, from St. Peter's Basilica, will go back by ship to Rome swaddled meticulously in packing plastic balls.

Most of the fair structures were built to last two years and then be torn down. The 19 planned now to be left permanently include:

The unisphere, the stainless steel "peace through understanding" symbol of the fair, donated by U.S. Steel, to be a park focal point.

The $12.6 million New York state building with its three inspiring towers, one of which has a 226-foot observation platform, its translucent cable-suspension roof larger than a football field, and a theater in the round.

International Cash Scene Not Bright

By ALFRED KRUSENSTIERN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Representatives of more than 100 countries meet here Monday to talk about money.

They may set in motion the first major reform of the world's monetary system in more than 20 years.

The representatives are ministers of finance or their personal representatives and they meet here as governors of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the World Bank. The meeting is a regularly scheduled annual session and although monetary reform is not listed on the agenda, the question of how to create additional monetary reserves, thereby increasing international liquidity, is expected to dominate the session.

International liquidity lies behind the talk of reform and it means, essentially, the reserves available to governments and central banks to finance potential balance of payments deficits. Under the present international system, which was devised at the 1944 Bretton Woods conference, these reserves consist primarily of gold, dollars and sterling.

Up to now, there has been no shortage of liquidity, since the United States was running a steady balance of payments deficit. This "dollar drain" enabled foreign countries to build up their reserves as international trade increased. However, once the U.S. balance of payments is brought into equilibrium, as it probably will be in the near future, there will be no further increase in the amount of dollars in circulation abroad while world trade continues to grow.

Since the amount of gold and sterling available is also limited, it could lead to what is called a "liquidity squeeze" that would seriously affect world trade and monetary stability.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, upon his return from an 11-day "sounding" trip to seven European countries, reported earlier this month that he has found a "general consensus" that the meeting will offer an "excellent opportunity" to clear the way for negotiating monetary reforms.

Fowler visited France, Italy, West Germany, Sweden, Belgium, The Netherlands and Britain. He said the monetary authorities he consulted agreed that the deputies of the finance ministers and central bank governors of the nations known as "the group of ten" were the most appropriate forum in which to get reform talks started.

Besides the countries Fowler visited, "the group of ten" includes Canada, Japan and the United States. The nations in this group are the principal holders of monetary reserves and sources of international monetary credits.

According to the plan outlined by Fowler, the deputies of the finance ministers and central bank governors of "the group of ten" are expected to arrive at joint recommendations and submit an interim report sometime next spring.

After this, other IMF member countries are to be consulted and asked to contribute recommendations.

A final draft will then be submitted to the 1966 IMF governors meeting. If accepted, the member governments will be asked to ratify it.

So far no official U.S. reform proposal has been circulated.

Fowler said the United States would enter negotiations without any fixed recommendations. He said it expects to contribute ideas as the talks move along.

However, the U.S. proposals are expected to be along the lines of a plan recently published by former Undersecretary of the Treasury Robert V. Roosa.

The Roosa plan is regarded as a compromise plan which also takes into account the views of the major European nations.

Roosa suggested the creation of "fund units." This is just another name for the "Composite Reserve Units" (CRU) first proposed by French Minister of Finance Giscard Valery D'Estaing.

Roosa recommends that the reserve units be administered by the IMF, which is what the United States wants. But within the IMF, "the group of ten" is to have the decisive role. This is what the more conservative European monetary authorities want.

Roosa said emphatically that the price of gold should be held at the present level of $35 per ounce. This happens to be the U.S. view. He also would require other nations participating in the creation of fund units to buy and sell gold at this fixed price.

Thus the currencies of other countries would attain equal standing with the U.S. dollar and might in turn become reserve currencies in their own right.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Speedy Redistricting Talk Not Likely To Come True

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The California Legislature wound up the first brief week of its special session in essentially the same position from which it started.

The meeting was called by Gov. Edmund G. Brown for consideration of three items—drawing new senate and assembly districts to conform to court orders requiring them to be equal in population; medical care insurance for the aged and indigent; and ratification of a U.S. constitutional amendment on presidential disability and appointment of a vice president.

Leadership of both houses had said earlier they could pass bills on redistricting within a week. However, the earliest target date for approval of a bill on assembly districts, by the Assembly, has been set for the second week in October, with no assurance this actually will take place.

In the Senate, there isn't even any talk of a target date.

The big stumbling block, of course, will be the drawing of Senate district lines in the populous counties which will have more than one senator.

There's believed to be at least one assemblyman who wants to run in each new senate district and they want a hand in setting up the area. This results in disagreements between parties and between others interested in the districts.

The State Bar held its annual convention in Sacramento and, among other things, continued its drive to take away the power of governors to appoint judges.

Governor Brown, who has differed with the bar on this question, spoke to the assemblage and praised all of the judges he has appointed. "I can say to you without any reservation that, as Governor, I am proud of the judges whom I have appointed." Under present operations, Brown accepts recommendations from the bar association on judicial appointments but is not bound by them.

An advisory committee on obscenity has been announced by Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch as the first step toward a statewide crackdown on pornography. The increased activity in the field will include investigation of the sources, gathering data for use by the legislature, assisting local authorities in legal proceedings against pornography, and exploring possible legal actions against purveyors of obscene materials.

Public hearings by the California public utilities commission on the undergrounding of electric and communication lines will begin in San Francisco on Wednesday and continue in Los Angeles at a later date.

The hearing will consider the aesthetics and economics of putting the lines underground, as well as establishment of safety rules for such operations. All electric and communication facilities involved have been invited to take part in the hearings.

Governor Brown has named James P. Alexander, former information officer with the department of corrections, as his cabinet secretary, a $20,000 a year post. Jules Berman, Beverly Hills business executive and developer, has been appointed to the state athletic commission, a non-salaried post on the body which regulates boxing and wrestling.

Even the professionals get confused at times when it comes to persons who live in one state running for senator in another state. The Democratic legislative campaign committee, headed by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-South San Francisco, announced plans for a fund-raising dinner. The announcement said Senator Robert F. Kennedy of Massachusetts would be the headline speaker.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

To a family that has lost a loved one in battle there is no such thing as a short war.

Thus the praise heaped upon Pakistan and India for heeding the United Nations cease-fire order after three weeks of fighting came as ashes in the mouths of the citizens of Dograi in Pakistan.

A month ago Dograi was a quiet little town like hundreds of others in Pakistan and India.

But unfortunately it straddled the grand trunk road from New Delhi, India's capital, to Lahore, Pakistan's second largest city.

In a final push by Indian troops just a few hours before the ceasefire went into effect, Dograi became a victim of its geography.

Now it is a ruin of war, flattened by Indian bombs. The few buildings still standing are scarred by bullets and shrapnel. The bodies of dead Pakistani soldiers lie bloating in the oppressive midday heat and the litter of war is everywhere.

Around The World Around The Clock

Peking: The border crisis between India and Communist China involving alleged fortifications built by India on the Chinese side of the China-Sikkim border abated considerably this week. China claimed that as a result of an ultimatum, India had dismantled the fortifications. India denied the report saying it had no fortifications to remove.

United Nations: U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, in his first major speech before the U.N. General Assembly outlined U.S. policy in which he opposed seating Red China until Peking refutes its avowed policy of "chaos, threats and violence."

Washington: The Senate approved a $3.14 billion appropriations bill to pay for another year of foreign aid.

Saigon: U.S. forces moved ahead in their relentless attack against the Communist Viet Cong. Hundreds of sorties were flown including raids by B-52 bombers based in Guam.

Vatican City: By an overwhelming vote Roman Catholic prelates at a Vatican ecumenical meeting endorse a resolution calling for religious liberty for all persons.

High-Low Play May Reveal Power To The Opposition

Expert defenders often play high-low to show an even number of cards in a suit.

The idea is to give partner a count, but the information may be more useful to declarer.

Opening lead — ♡ Q

West opened the queen of hearts and continued the suit until South ruffed the third round.

Declarer drew one round of trumps with the ace and then cashed the ace and king of clubs.

SOUGHT TO RUFF

South intended to ruff a club with a high trump, lead a trump to dummy's nine and then give up the fourth round of clubs. If West had to win the fourth club, he would be unable to make a safe return lead.

South changed his mind because East played the six of clubs and then the four of clubs, indicating that he had started with four clubs.

If so, there was no chance to make West win the fourth club trick.

OTHER CHANCE

There was still a chance if West's three clubs included the queen or jack. Declarer therefore drew a second round of trumps with dummy's nine and then led the nine of clubs from dummy.

East couldn't afford to play the queen since the jack would fall and dummy's 10 would be good for a trick. East therefore played low, and South discarded his low diamond.

West had to win the trick with the jack of clubs and was in a pickle that only South considered pretty.

If West returned a diamond, South would get a free finesse; and if West returned a heart, dummy would ruff while South got rid of the queen of diamonds.

It doesn't pay to tell your partner more than he needs to know.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player doubles.

You hold:

♥ Q J 10 5
♦ K 7 6 3
♣ J 7 2

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three hearts.

This jump raise after an opponent's takeout double shows four or more trumps with roughly the values of a normal single raise. The object is to keep the next player out if possible. If you had a good hand you would redouble first and show your support later.

Windswept Westernmost Tip Of Marin County

Point Reyes, a chunk of granite which juts into the Pacific Ocean west of Drake's Bay, is believed to be the foggiest spot on the Pacific Coast in North America. The lighthouse at the tip of the point was built in 1870, mainly to attempt to protect the coastal lumber schooners which sailed among the rocks to load lumber from dogholes along the Mendocino Coast. A north wind blows most of the time across the ridge. Stratification of sedimentary rock, which supports grazing land, can be seen on the cliffs above the granite. A part of the Point Reyes National Seashore, the lighthouse continues in operation and as a weather station. It is open to the public and may be reached by a long road going past Drake's Beach. The narrow road, the final extension of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, runs down a sharp hill before reaching the point. Before the National Seashore was established, the point and lighthouse was one of the few places which was not privately owned and where the public had access.

Dodgers' Pennant Time-Table Ahead Of Schedule

By FRED DOWN

The Los Angeles Dodgers are one game behind the San Francisco Giants or six days ahead of them depending upon how you view the National League race.

The standings say they're one game behind — and even the Dodgers better believe them because they do pay off on arithmetic on the final day.

But the Dodgers also are six days ahead — and the Giants better believe that, too, because Los Angeles Manager Walt Alston doesn't fool around when he sets a pennant time table.

Back on Sept. 7, following two straight losses to the Giants, Alston said he'd be happy if the Dodgers were able to climb to within one game of the leaders by the last Thursday of the season. The Dodgers have bounced back even faster than Alston figured and have sliced the once-imposing four-game Giant lead to one thin game six days earlier than Alston had it doped out.

The typically frantic N.L. race was further tightened last night when the Dodgers rallied to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 and the Giants bowed to the Milwaukee Braves 8-2. The victory extended the Dodgers' winning streak to seven games—their longest since the pennant-winning season of 1963—while the loss was the Giants' third in a row.

The Dodgers scrambled from behind as is their custom last night to pull out the victory when rookie second baseman Jim Lefebvre delivered a two-run single with the bases filled in the eighth inning. The Giants, meanwhile, were held to four hits by Tony Cloninger, who breezed to his 23rd victory despite a homer and a double by Willie McCovey that produced both San Francisco runs.

Bob Gibson, St. Louis' 1964 World Series hero carried a 3-2 lead into the eighth inning but Dodgers were on first and third when Willie Davis and Ron Fairly led off the frame with singles. Relief pitcher Hal Woodeshick intentionally walked Lou Johnson to fill the bases but then Lefebvre singled to center to drive in the runs that put the Dodgers in front to stay.

Ron Perranoski, who relieved Claude Osteen in the eighth inning, held the Cardinals to one hit in the last two innings to receive credit for his sixth win of the season. The loss was Gibson's 12th against 18 victories.

Marichal On Spot Tomorrow

"The way you guys sit around you'd think it was a funeral in here," manager Herman Franks of the San Francisco Giants grunted between bites on an ear of corn last night at Candlestick Park.

"Then the burly man glowered around the room from behind his desk and added, "What the hell? We aren't getting any runs now. But we aren't dead either."

Franks made his statements after the Milwaukee Braves hung an 8-2 defeat on the Giants last night and dropped them to just one game ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the clutch part of the National League race.

While the Giants were losing their third in a row, the Dodgers tightened things up by making it seven straight with a 4-3 win over St. Louis. Idle Cincinnati wound up three games off the pace.

"I hear Bobby Bragan says it's a good thing we aren't playing the Dodgers for the rest of the season," Franks said. "Well let me tell you, I'd rather play the team that's right behind us than anyone else."

"It's a typical National League race," observed Bragan. "It won't be settled until the last day. Can't miss."

"It's a rat-race, all right," conceded Franks. "But that figured, didn't it?

"The main thing is we're still ahead. Sure we lost a few but we've got a good team. We'll just have to battle a little harder. That's all."

In tomorrow's series finale it will be Juan Marichal for the Giants and Hank Fischer for the Braves.

"It's up to Marichal," said Bragan. "It's up to that fellow whether the Giants win or lose the pennant."

Franks gave Bob Shaw 15-8, the job of getting the Giants back on the track today when they faced Milwaukee's knuckle balling Ken Johmnson 15-9.

Are the Giants tired after extending a winning streak?

"We're no tireder than any other club," Franks said. "And we've lost nothing yet. We intend to keep right on battling."

The Braves, breaking out of a five game losing streak and still feebly alive in the race, put the wood to three Giant hurlers for 13 safeties as Tony Cloninger rolled to his 23rd win of the season on a four-hitter.

The only batter who could do anything with Cloninger's overpowering deliveries was Willie McCovey who doubled across one run in the fourth inning then smashed his 38th homer in the eighth.

Cloninger, not considered much with the bat, broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth when he hoisted a sacrifice fly after loser Ron Herbel (11-8) had intentionally loaded the bases to get at him.

Then Cloninger whacked relief pitcher Gaylord Perry for a two-run single as the Braves scored four times in the seventh. Mack Jones opened the frame with his 30th home run of the season before Herbel was taken out.

This gave the Braves a record-tying total of three players who have hit 30 or more home runs for one club in a season. The mark, held by many teams, is built around Jones, Henry Aaron who has 32 and Ed Mathews with 31.

Bragan, the Braves' candid manager, refused to get overly excited over the fact that his team still has a mathematical chance for the flag.

"The guillotine is just above our necks but hasn't fallen yet," said the man who could be in the process of executing the Giants.

TERRA LINDA GAINS 40

Terra Linda High School's John Forry catches a pass from quarterback Sid Norman in the second quarter of last night's game against Ukiah. The play was good for 40 yards. Moving in on the play is Ukiah's Randy Farmer. The Trojans of Terra Linda won the game, 12-6, to run their record to two wins and no losses. See story on page 12.

1:27 To Go, Redwood Wins

By RALPH CHATOIAN

That old Redwood High School spirit that died last year is back in full force.

And with that revitalized spirit, football coach Bob Troppmann has brought in a new brand of football. The "new" Giants drove 62 yards to score a winning touchdown last night with only 1:27 left in the game to fight to their second straight win, 14-12 over DeAnza of Richmond.

Troppmann's new football features direct snaps from center to halfbacks and fullbacks, spinner plays and delayed plunges in the line, keeping the defense off balance. Last night's winning drive was made up of 16 straight running plays, with quarterback Dane Durham finally plunging over on a quarterback sneak from the 1-foot line. (See photo, page 11.)

Redwood was the first to score, late in the first half, after missing on two earlier chances. Redwood moved from the DeAnza 43 to the 6 in five plays and then, on a third and goal play, Durham passed to halfback Len Pieri in the left corner of the end zone and Pieri jumped high to pull it down for the TD, with only six seconds left in the half. Tom Sather kicked the first of his two extra points to make it 7-0. Using the clock like the pros, Redwood started its drive with only 1 minute and 20 seconds left in the half.

DeAnza came back midway in the third quarter with fullback Ken Burrow skirting right end for eight yards and a touchdown, but the kick to tie the game was blocked by Redwood's charging line. Then in the final quarter, DeAnza went ahead, Burrow again scoring the TD on a 3-yard dive through right tackle. The boot for PAT was wide to the left.

The Dons, leading 12-7, kicked off to Redwood with 8:36 still left in the game. The clock wore on as the Giants stuck to the ground, churning out the yard-

It was another big day for Marin Athletic League football teams yesterday. Besides Redwood's dramatic victory, the Tamalpais Indians and Terra Linda Trojans also won their second straight games while Novato battled Petaluma to a 20-20 tie. See page 12.

Emerson Is Upset In L.A. Tennis

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Young Charles Pasarell has upset the tournament's top - seeded star, Roy Emerson, but today's semi-final match in the Pacific Southwest tennis championships should prove just as challenging.

Pasarell, who played brilliantly yesterday in his surprisingly easy 6-0, 6-4 victory over Emerson, will play UCLA teammate Arthur Ashe today.

Ashe had to come from behind to down Marty Riessen, 1-6, 8-6, 6-2. Ashe played badly in the first set, but consistently improved and handily dominated the third set.

In the other semifinal today, Dennis Ralston plays Allen Fox. Both won quarterfinal matches Thursday.

Pasarell scored an overwhelming victory in the first set, breaking Emerson's serve in the first, third and fifth games with smashing returns. The young Puerto Rican hardly missed a shot and took just 16 minutes to shut out his Australian opponent.

The winner continued his great play, taking a 3-0 lead in the second set. Emerson settled down and played better in the latter stages, but couldn't overcome Pasarell's commanding lead.

'PARALYZED PUTTERS' IN SEATTLE TOURNEY

By JACK HEWINS

SEATTLE (AP)—An epidemic of putter paralysis threatened the 70 survivors who set out shakily today on the third round of the $45,000 Greater Seattle Open Golf Tournament with feverish memories of a day they'll always call "three-putt Friday."

If an inanimate thing like a golf course can fight back, Inglewood Country Club's layout did it with lightning fast greens that confounded the finest putters in the business.

Nastiest of all was the 10th, where even the most hardened tour veterans were happy to get down in three putts.

One of the vets was Bob Rosburg, now in his 12th touring year, who had to sink an eight-foot tap-in to escape with a double bogey six on the hole. Despite his three putts there, Rosburg totaled only 28 putts in the round of 67 which tied him with Al Geiberger at the midway point.

Both had 139's, Rosburg carrying over a par-72 and Geiberger adding a 70 to his first round 69. Lanky Al, winner this year of the American Golf Classic at Akron, Ohio, three-putted the first hole but after that avoided trouble by pitching short and running the ball close to the pins. He had three birdies in his studiously played round.

Charles Coody was a stroke back of the leaders. Tied at 141 were Bob McCallister, Gary Bauer and Gay Brewer. Coody, McCallister and Bauer had shared the first round lead with 68's, a stroke ahead of Brewer.

So tough was the layout yesterday that players with 148—four over par—survived the cut.

Defending champion Billy Casper made the grade, booking a 72 after his first day 75. Dave Marr, 1961 Seattle champion, fired his second 73 to stay in contention.

Jack Nicklaus, this year's richest tourist, skied to a 74 on the puzzling greens after his first round 69. He was champion here in 1962.

Canadian Stan Leonard, who said he would retire from the tour after his first round 78, changed his mind when he scored a 71 yesterday—but he still missed the qualifying list.

Rosburg's 67 was the best round of the tourney's first two days. The husky Portlander is favoring a sore right wrist which he sprained in July during the Canadian Open.

Except for his sad experience on the 10th hole, Rosburg felt no other pain. He had eight birdies, one bogey and the fat six. One of his putts was a 50-foot birdie on the 15th hole.

"These were the fastest greens I've ever seen," said Rosburg, "and I mean anywhere in the world. It probably was the last two hot days that brought a sudden drying out of the surfaces. If you stopped uphill from the hole you were lost."

COLTS VERSUS PACKERS

Early Pro Grid Showdown

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore's Colts go from tough to tougher for the second weekend of action in the National Football League season.

The Colts opened defense of their Western Division title last Sunday against a top-rated challenger, Minnesota, and whipped the Vikings 35-16. This Sunday they face the team regarded as the best in the West — and perhaps in the league: The Green Bay Packers.

The Colts and the Packers, 41-9 winners over Pittsburgh on opening day, tangle at Milwaukee.

Also on the Sunday schedule: the St. Louis Cardinals vs. the Browns at Cleveland, the Detroit Lions against the Vikings at Minnesota, the Washington Redskins against the Cowboys at Dallas, the New York Giants and the Eagles at Philadelphia, the Chicago Bears vs. the Rams at Los Angeles, and the Pittsburgh Steelers against the 49ers at San Francisco.

Denver started the American Football League weekend last night with its first road victory since 1962, beating Boston 27-10. Sunday's AFL games are New York at Buffalo, Houston at Oakland and Kansas City at San Diego.

Both the Colts and Packers, obviously, looked impressive in their openers. And the winner tomorrow,, obviously, has to be regarded as the favorite in the West.

Baltimore should lean heavily on Johnny Unitas' passes against the rugged Packer defense, while Green Bay once again has attacking balance — Bart Starr's passing—to compliment the strong running game.

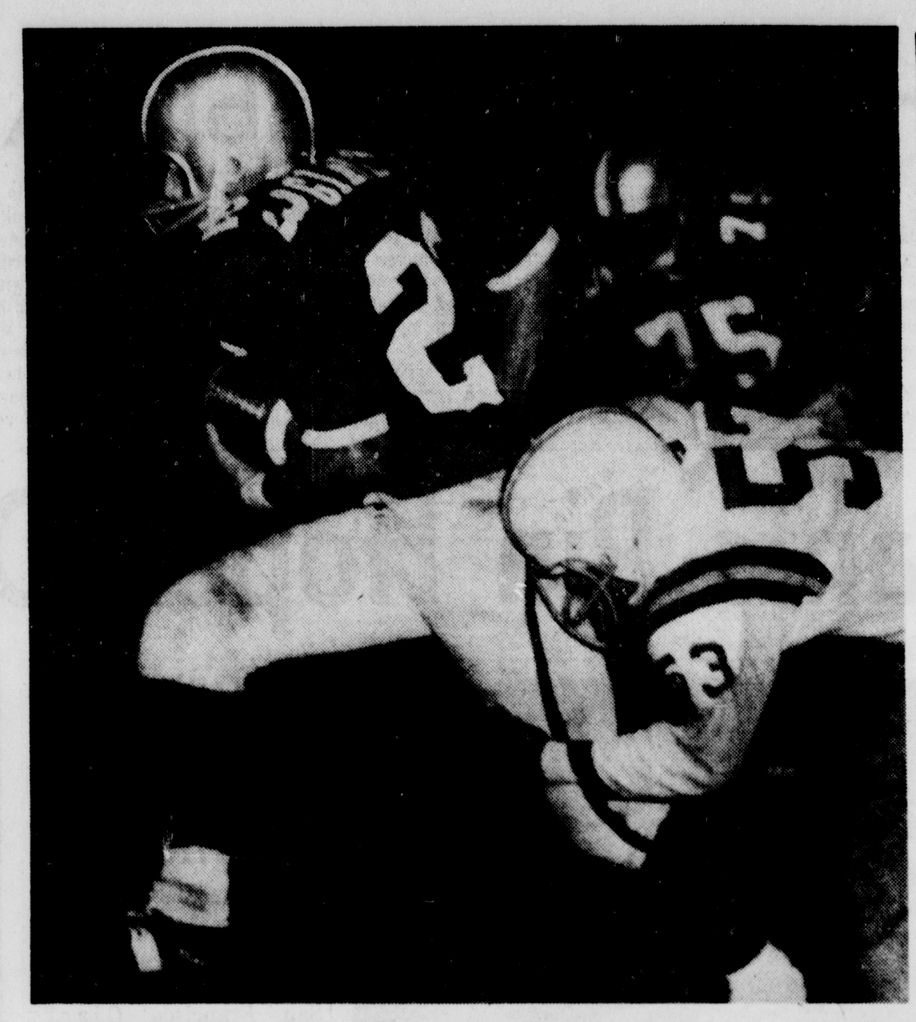

The Colts shaded the Packers twice last year, but this time the Packers have a placekicker who can help avert losing squeakers — Don Chandler in place of Paul Hornung.

Cleveland's defending league champions opened last Sunday with a 17-7 decision over Washington, while the Cardinals — picked by many to dethrone the Browns this season — were upset 34-27 by Philadelphia. This one shapes up as Jimmy Brown's power running for Cleveland against the passing of Charley Johnson.

Detroit displayed its usual unyielding defense in shutting out the Rams 20-0 on opening day, but the Vikings' versatile offense should provide a much sterner test.

DE ANZA STAR—Ken Burrow, the lad who scored both DeAnza touchdowns, goes up to snag a pass good for 15 yards and a first down in the fourth quarter of last night's game. Defending for Redwood are Tom Sather (31) and Dan Salata (21).

SHORT GAINER — Redwood's Len Pieri picks up four yards during the fourth quarter of last night's game in Kentfield. Making the stop is DeAnza's Bill Alden.

age. With Pieri, Sather, Royce Johnson, Harvey Hand and Durham toting the ball, the Giants picked up five first downs on their winning march.

Although the Giants' running game was the weapon in that final march, Durham had a fine passing night, completing 10 of 15 passes for 99 yards.

But stealing the quarterback show was Richard Blanton of DeAnza. He completed 10 of 14 passes in the second half for 142 yards, leading the Dons to both their touchdowns.

FORRY STARS

Terra Linda '11' Defeats Ukiah

By MAURICE WEINGER

John Forry, a former end who is trying to add to his offensive ability by moving to the backfield, scored both touchdowns in Terra Linda's 12-6 win over Ukiah nast night at San Rafael.

The Trojan win was a team effort as the defensive unit, led by charging Jim Crisp, held the visitors to a total of 73 yards. Forry, however, was the player who was in the right position at the right time. Late in the fourth quarter after Ukiah had scored its only touchdown, the northern school started another march, but a Ukiah pass was intercepted by the alert Forry deep in Terra Linda territory.

Terra Linda looked like world-beaters during the first quarter when it scored the first six points and started another drive for the second touchdown early in the second quarter.

Using the I formation with some split-T pitchout options, the Marin team took the opening kickoff and drove right down the field for a 69-yard scoring drive. Senior John Paydo, playing his first varsity game, was the big ground gainer with a 16-yard burst over right tackle to Ukiah's 47.

Forry, Criag Hill and John Sherbert added 15 more yards, but a loss of eight occurred when quarterback Sid Norman, trying to pitch out on the left side, threw the ball away and John Clifford fell on it at the 40.

Norman wasted little time getting back the lost yards—in fact he went for broke—as he sent Forry down the right side of the field and threw a perfect pass that was grabbed on the 15 and the receiver went the rest of the way untouched.

The second score was completely "grounded out" with a drive of 14 plays for 55 yards. Sherbert started it rolling with two off-tackle plays for eight yards, and Paydo added 10 more for a first down on Ukiah's 37. three more runs had the ball down to the 15 where the Trojans started sweeping the ends.

Clifford got two, Paydo made eight and Forry added the last five for the 12th point.

A Norman fumble in the fourth quarter on his 18 yard line set up Ukiah's only score as the visitors punched it in on three running plays.

Tam '11' Defeats Skyline

Tamalpais' football team, upstart from the Marin Athletic League, rambled to its second straight triumph yesterday, 16-6 over Skyline High at Oakland.

Horace White, a defensive guard, tackled a Skyline ball carrier behind his own goal line for a safety in the first quarter, giving the Indians a 2-0 lead.

Then in the second quarter, Ray Stark took a punt for a 52-yard touchdown gallop to put the Indians in front 8-0. Kirk Sparks added the extra point with a run. Before the half was over, Skyline scored its lone touchdown to narrow Tam's lead to 9-6.

Mike Biber scored Tam's second touchdown on a pass from quarterback Tom Lecy in the third quarter and Sparks again ran the extra point.

Tam opens its league season next Saturday against San Rafael at Kentfield.

First four innings of the game will be softball and the last five will be baseball, said Bob Selna, manager of the Merchants team which will be trying for a third straight win.

Novato Rallies To 20-20 Deadlock With Petaluma

Playing a fired-up second half, Novato came from a 13-0 deficit to tie Petaluma's Trojans 20-20 last night in Petaluma.

The Hornets of Novato came within a hair of avenging Marin County's lone prep football defeat this year. Petaluma nipped Drake last week, 13-12, and all other Marin prep teams have won their non-league scraps.

Petaluma scored on two passing plays last night in the first half, as the Trojans' rushing attack was stymied by Novato's defense. At intermission it was Petaluma 13, Novato O.

In the third quarter, Novato came back with a strong drive to put the Hornets back in the game. It was halfback Frank Perachiotti going over from the three to put Novato on the scoreboard. Bill Coots kicked the extra point.

Novato got its hands on the ball again late in the third quarter and drove to the Petaluma 2-yard line. By this time the fourth quarter had begun. Tailback Dick Otis, Novato's big runner, scored on a two-yard plunge and Coots kicked the PAT that put Novato ahead 14-13.

Novato's defense pushed Petaluma back for two consecutive 20-yard losses when the Trojans got the ball, and Petaluma was faced with a third down and 50 yards to go, all the way back on its own 30-yard stripe. A sweep around right end gained 20 and a roughing penalty against Novato on the play gave the Trojans another 15, giving them a fourth and 15 from the Novato 35. The Trojans hit on a pass on the next play and went out in front, 20-14.

Novato, continuing its ball control football, drove for the tying touchdown with only two minutes left in the game, Otis hitting from two yards out. Coots' kick for the game-winning extra point went wide to the right, and the Hornets had to be content with a tie.

Teams With Fewest Injuries, Most Luck Win In Pro Grid

RANDOL

Football is a game of attrition. For every man on every team for every game of every season the whole idea is to wear out the other guy before he gets you. Actually, the grinding process starts in training camp with the physical conditioning program and the competition for jobs.

When the final gun sounds, it is usually the good team with the fewest injuries over the year that comes up a winner. If it is lucky. Top sports teams with 218-2 std hed physical condition and proper mental attitude are important, but the key words are GOOD and LUCKY. Title holders, then, must be good and lucky.

The Green Bay Packers, the Baltimore Colts and the Cleveland Browns are good teams. Take away Jim Taylor or Bart Starr, Johnny Unitas or Jim Brown from these teams and they are still good, but they have lost the luck factor. You saw what happened to the Packers when they lost Paul Hornung.

This year the 49ers appear to be a GOOD team. Through last week they seemed to be lucky, too. John David Crow broke a bone in his hand but he is still effective. Over all, the 49ers have really saved money on the adhesive tape budget. Not like the last two years when tape was all that held the team together.

The loss of Dan Colchico will hurt as he was tops at his end position. Now the linebacking situation is in a turmoil with the injury of Matt Hazeltine and rookie Ed Beard. Some real scrambling will go on to fill those gaps.

Early reports indicate Hazeltine will be out for six weeks. I doubt very much that Matt will ever again don a 49er uniform. At age 32 and in his 11th year of pro ball the odds are against him. Last week the docs drained fluid from Matt's swollen knee but there he was, ready to go against the Chicago Bears had he been needed. Now, with an operation and time to think, Matt may chuck it all. Remeber he tried to quit five years ago.

Fortunately, the 49ers should have another whole week to reorganize their shaken defense. Barring complacency and a natural let-down after crushing the Bears, the Niners should be able to use this Sunday's game as a breather.

Not a good team to start with, the Pittsburgh Steelers have had a dismal exhibition season, their coach has quit cold, and injuries have taken their top quarterback and also John Henry Johnson, their only real running threat. Players have been coming and going so fast the team members have to be introduced to each other before each game.

Last week the Packers chewed up the Steelers. This week the 49ers should bury what the Packers spit out. Then, for three weeks, the 49ers hit the road against Baltimore, the Packers and the L. A. Rams. By the time they get home we'll know how good the team is. And how lucky.

Marin Builders Hit The Road

Taking to the road again, the Billings-Hutchison Builders of San Rafael trek to the Peninsula to take on the Palo Alto Oaks in a non-league semi-pro baseball game tomorrow, 1:30 p.m.

Last time these two teams met, the Builders won 7-6 in 11 innings. Sharing the pitching duties tomorrow for B-H will be Ron Cole and Ron Law, two hurlers who recently returned from the minor leagues.

Cole ended the season at Durham, North Carolina, with 6 wins and 2 losses and a 2.48 earned run average. Durham is a Houston Astros farm team in the Carolina League. Law won 12 and lost 10 with a Chicago farm team in the Midwest League.

Puzzling 49ers Vs. Steelers Tomorrow

Pittsburgh's Steelers seek an answer to the San Francisco 49er riddle tomorrow at Kezar Stadium.

The 49ers posed the puzzler a week ago when they whacked the Chicago Bears 52-24 in their National Football League opener, the highest score ever run up by San Francisco in NFL play.

Having lost to the 49ers 23-9 in pre-season play, the Steelers knew something about them yet who would have guessed at that 52-point outpouring?

Coach Jack Christiansen made one change in his starting offensive lineup—John David Crow replacing Dave Kopay at halfback. Crow suffered a fractured hand in the pre-season game against the Steelers, but came back Sunday to smash 18 yards for the 49ers' first touchdown against the Bears.

John Brodie, who fired four scoring passes a week ago to win honors as the Associated Press offensive player of the week, again directs the offense.

Pittsburgh, under new coach Mike Nixon, took a 41-9 whipping from Green Bay.

Injuries also have cut into the 49ers. Defensive end Dan Colchico is out for the season with a ruptured Achilles tendon and linebacker Matt Hazeltine will miss at least six weeks with a knee that needed surgery.

Veteran Karl Rubke fills in for Colchico and rookie Jack Chapple took over Hazeltine's right linebacker spot. To bolster the squad, the 49ers signed linebacker Bob Harrison, who formerly played for them, and Dan LaRose, an end from the Baltimore Colts. The latter came in exchange for a future draft choice.

The meeting between the Western Division 49ers and Eastern Division Steelers will be their first in a league game since Pittsburgh scored a 20-10 victory in Pittsburgh in 1961.

The kickoff is slated for 1 p.m.

Record In Tahoe Regatta

STATELINE, Nev. (AP)—No matter who won, the field in today's 1965 Lake Tahoe world championship regatta is the fastest afloat, race officials said.

The six top boats qualified Tuesday through yesterday with an average speed of 115.020 miles an hour. The previous high average qualifying speed was 112.7 m.p.h. for the Gold Cup race at Seattle earlier this year, officials said.

Today's main event carried prize money of $30,050. Another $17,000 was up for winners in two secondary races.

The regatta is the successor to the former Lake Tahoe regatta sponsored each September by Bill Harrah, Nevada gambler and owner of Tahoe Miss, one of the competing hydroplanes.

The race is sponsored by a community organization at the south shore of the Sierra Nevada lake. The group obtained world championship sanction from the Union of International Motorboating and added Indianapolis auto race-type starts, with the top qualifiers winning the favored starting positions.

In the No. 1 spot was Miss U.S. 5 which qualified with the speed of nearly 120 miles an hour.

Ranked second through sixth in the championship race were Miss Bardahl, Notre Dame, Miss Exide, Tahoe Miss and Miss Madison.

Nine other boats were entered in the other races, the Ponderosa and the South Shore. Only two boats which came to the lake failed to qualify at all. Neither craft's engine would start yesterday.

Unbeaten Houston Oilers Invade Oakland Tomorrow

OAKLAND (AP) — Houston's undefeated Oilers battle for their eighth triumph of 1965 and third straight in American Football League competition tomorrow in facing the Oakland Raiders.

Houston swept through five pre-season games and then whipped New York 27-21 and the Boston Patriots 31-10 in games which count in the standings.

Having beaten Kansas City 37-10 and lost to San Diego 17-6, the Raiders stand 1-1.

The Oilers, with new Coach Hugh (Bones) Taylor, pose a one-two threat at quarterback. Young Don Trull hit three touchdown passes against the Jets and then old pro Blanda connected with three against Boston.

Ode Burell outgained all the Boston running backs 83 yards to 57 and Charlie Frazier outdistanced the combined efforts of all Patriot pass catchers with 182 yards to 150.

The Raiders' defense looked solid against San Diego but the offense, which had piled up a one-sided margin the previous week, couldn't get untracked.

"We'll have to try and bounce back this week," declared Davis, who like Taylor was once an assistant to Sid Gillman of the Chargers.

It's doubtful this game starting at 1:30 p.m. will have the offensive fireworks of the season finale in 1963 because there has been too much improvement in the defenses.

But that day at Youell Field, the Raiders won 52-49. So the two clubs share AFL records for most touchdown passes in a single game at 11 (six by Oakland, five by Houston); most kickoff returns, 18; most touchdowns, 14; most points after touchdown, 14; and most points scored — 101.

Lebanese Monastic Candidate For Saint

By DAVID L. DUGAS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) —A Lebanese monk credited with miracles which purportedly occurred more than 50 years after his death is one of two new candidates named by the Vatican for sainthood.

The monk, Father Charbel Makhlouf, died in 1898.

He had been locally revered as a saint for years because of reports that his body remained intact long after his death. Yet it was not until 1950 that a number of afflicted persons visiting his tomb were said to have been miraculously cured. In one case a boy was cured of a leg defect. In another, a hunchbacked old woman was straightened. In a third, a blind Moslem convict regained his eyesight after cotton rubbed on the tomb was applied to his eyes.

Father Charbel was born in the small village of Bikaa-Kafra at the foot of the southern Lebanese mountains, 5000 feet above the Mediterranean.

When Yousouf—his name before he became a priest — was three years old his father died and he and his brothers were placed under the guardianship of an uncle. From early childhood Yousouf showed religious tendencies, often hiding himself in nearby caves and spending long hours in meditation and prayer.

When he was 23 he left home and made his way to the Monastery of St. Maroun in Anaya, not far from his birthplace. He soon gained the respect of his superiors and was sent to the convent of St. Cyprian where he studied Arabic and Syriac.

Eight years later, in 1859, he was ordained and given the name Charbel. There he lived in seclusion until his death.

Months after Charbel's death curious monks opened the tomb and discovered Charbel's body had not decayed. The overwhelmed monks and villagers began calling Charbel a saint.

The body was laid in a wooden coffin in a corner of the Monastery's private chapel, but continually gave out a bloodlike liquid and the monks were obliged to change its garments twice a week.

Word soon spread throughout Lebanon and thousands came to visit Gharbel's tomb.

The Pope referred the case to the Maronite Patriarch and a special commission met in May, 1926. After a lengthy study, the body was reburied to prevent its unauthorized veneration.

For 23 years nothing more was heard of Father Charbel. Then in February, 1950, worshippers gathered around his tomb were astonished to see a reddish liquid oozing from one of its corners.

When the tomb was reopened for further examination, the body of Father Charbel was again found in good condition and liquid was flowing from the foot of the coffin. That was the last mysterious event except for a light reportedly seen shining from the tomb later the same year.

Pope Paul VI recently proclaimed that Father Charbel and a German woman had the virtues necessary for beautification. The Vatican's Congregation of Rites must now study evidence to establish whether the monk and the woman were responsible for at least two of the miracles attributed to them.

Renovation Work For St. Columba's

Repair work is expected to begin next month on the old mansion which today is St. Columba's Church, retreat house, rectory and parish ofice in Inverness.

The work was authorized last week at a meeting of the bishop's committee which approved spending $3,000 to rehabilitate the kitchen of the building—and turn it into an edifice for Rev. Francis W. Read; change his present office into a dormitory so that more than the present maximum of 18 retreatants may be housed; beat back a termite infestation and repair electrical wiring.

Papal 'Throne' Long Prepared For Pontiff

NEW YORK (AP) — For 115 years a gold-painted Victorian chair has stood in readiness for a Pope at the residence of New York's Roman Catholic cardinal.

It will get its first use next month when Pope Paul VI visits the United Nations.

The chair is a papal throne, built in 1850 by the city's first cardinal, John McClosky. It was the custom for each cardinal to prepare a papal throne in anticipation of a visit by the Pope.

Pope Paul's visit Oct. 4 will be the first by a pontiff to the North American continent. The Pope will visit the United Nations, where he is to address the General Assembly and offer a mass for world peace.

Guest Speaker For Baptists

Rev. Arthur L. Foster, dean and professor of theology and personality at the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, will give a sermon at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of Corte Madera.

"Attitudes and Beatitudes" will be the title of the sermon from the minister who is a member of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion. He is a former professor at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and is a member of the Society for Religion in Higher Education.

He will appear as part of the church's observance of Christian Education Sunday The annual promotion day exercises will be held at 9:45 a.m. at the Sunday church school.

Is Korea Still Land Of Morning Calm?

"Is It Still the Land of Morning Calm?" is the title of a talk and slide showing on Korea by Marie Melrose before the first fall meeting of the XL Club of Redwoods Presbyterian Church, Larkspur, during the dinner hour on Tuesday.

Miss Melrose is a worker for the United Presbyterian Church in Korea. She is the daughter of Rev. Paul C. Melrose of the local church.

Religion Class

Rev. N. J. Bangert of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, Terra Linda, will begin a series of religious instruction sessions, at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the church, which will continue once weekly for some months.

Services Begin Jewish New Year

Marin's two Jewish congregations are preparing to celebrate High Holy Days of Rosh Hashanah, the new year of 5726.

Conservative Congregations of and Congregation Rodef Sholom, both in San Rafael, will begin the holiday services Sunday on the eve of Rosh Hashanah.

At Congregation Kol Shofar, Rabbi Morris Schussheim's sermon at 8 p.m. will be "Confrontation With God." Services on Monday will begin at 9 a.m. with the sermon "Confrontation with Community." On Tuesday at the same time the sermon will be "Confrontation with Oneself."

At Congregation Rodef Sholom Rabbi Morton Hoffman will hold two Sunday services at 7 and 9 p.m. with the sermon title "Between Man and God: the Thought of Martin Buber."

Monday's service beginning at 10 a.m. will have as its sermon "Between Israel and the Diaspora: The Thought of Martin Buber." A special children's service is scheduled for 2 p.m. Monday, followed by a family reception for congregation members at 3 p.m.

On Tuesday at 10 a.m. the congregation members will gather for a worship service without a sermon.

Inmate members of the Jewish faith at San Quentin Prison will celebrate the new year at a service beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the prison chapel, followed by a diner for inmates, invited prison officials and guests from outside the walls.

Rosh Hashanah's one of the most ancient and sacred days in Jewish history. The commandments for the observance of the holiday are described in the biblical book of Leviticus, compiled three thousand years ago. According to the Hebrew calendar, the year 1965 is the Hebrew year 5726.

The Jewish New Year is different in character from the exuberant celebrations of other peoples. It is a serious day, during which Jews come together to pray, to examine their acts and their relationship to God and to see each other.

It is the first of the great "Days of Awe," a 10-day period culminating in the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur.

According to Hebrew tradition, during this period man's fate is written down on Rosh Hashanah and sealed on the final day of Yom Kippur wich begins this year at sundown Oct. 5. Orthodox and Conservative Jews observe Rosh Hashanah for two days, most Reform Jews for one.

The two-day observance is the survival from the days after the Diaspora, when Jews were separated and communication between them was difficult — since the Hebrew calendar was a lunar one and differed from the prevailing solar calendar, it was feared that an error in reckoning might deprive a Jew living in the Diaspora from observing Rosh Hashanah on the proper day.

The traditional Rosh Hashanah service reaches climax when the shofar (a hollow ram's horn, one of the oldest instruments known to man) is blown.

The book of Leviticus refers to the sound of the shofar as a "blast of horns, a holy convocation." Over the centuries it has symbolized many things to Jews ancient and modern: a call to battle, the tearing away of the old year and the past through repentence and forgiveness, a plea to God that he remember man, and an alarm to rouse man from his moral indolence to an awareness of his responsibilities toward God and his fellow man.

Teacher Salute

Members of the Greater Marin Youth For Christ will open its school year meeting schedule with a "Salute to Teachers" at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 2 at the First Baptist Church, San Anselmo.

Seminary To Observe Founder's Day

Founder's Day will be observed at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Strawberry on Wednesday to commemorate the 21st year of the school.

Principal speaker for the anniversary will be Rev. Floyd Looney, western field secretary for the Southern Baptist Convention Annuity Board.

Looney was the first vice-president of the seminary in 1945 when the California state convention assumed ownership and control of the school, begun in Oakland in 1944.

As field representative for Golden Gate, Looney led a campaign to raise the first $10,000 for the school. He was also a member of the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention in 1950, the year Golden Gate was accepted as a national seminary by the organization.

REV. FLOYD LOONEY
Seminary speaker

Harold K. Graves, now third president of the seminary, will preside at the founder's day service.

There are 262 students now enrolled at the seminary, up slightly from the total last fall. Overseas students make up more than 10 per cent of the seminary student body, coming from Denmark, Italy, Brazil, Argentina, Puerto Rico, Canada, Taiwan, Japan, Korea, China (Hong Kong) and the Philippines.

SOMETHING FOR THE CHILDREN

The youngsters were in the front row when Rev. N. J. Bangert of the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection, turned the first spade full of ground for the foundation of the education building recently. The building will contain eight class rooms and two offices. It is designed by Harry Lovett of the architectural firm of John S. Bolles, San Francisco. It will be next to the present church structure at 1100 Las Gallinas Avenue, Terra Linda.

Laymen's Religious Study Courses Set

Registration is now open for courses being offered this semester in Tiburon, Mill Valley and San Rafael by the Marin County Branch of the Layman's School of Religion.

"Theology in the Sixties: The Existential Point of View," is the title of a course to be held at the Mill Valley Community Church, 10 Olive Street, beginning Oct. 7. Rev. Henry Kuizenga of Presbyterian San Francisco Theological Seminary will be the instructor.

"Christian Faith For Today" is the title of a course to be held Wednesday, from 8 to 10 p.m. at the First Methodist Church, 9 Ross Valley Drive, San Rafael, beginning Oct. 6. Rev. Shunji Nishi of the Episcopal Church Divinity School of the Pacific, Berkeley, will be the instructor.

"The Ministry of the Laity to Persons" is the title of a course scheduled for Tuesday, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 240 Tiburon Highway, Tiburon. Registration met for its first session last week. Rev. Muriel James, dean of the laymen's school, will instruct.

More than 500 adults in Marin have attended laymen's school classes since the school was founded in 1959. The school is a non-denominational organization whose purpose is to offer adults an opportunity to explore possible meanings for man's existence today from historic and contemporary Judeo-Christian points of view, it's organizers explain.

Minister To Tackle Viet Nam Question

Rev. Karel F. Botermans, minister of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin will take on the question "What Are We Doing in Viet Nam?" during the 11 a.m. service tomorrow in San Rafael.

"I will try to formulate an answer from a religious and ethical point of view," Botermans wrote in the church bulletin. A discussion with the congregation members will follow the service.

Plan Church Dedication

The Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon will dedicate the first of its projected complex of buildings tomorrow.

Services at 11 a.m. will feature Rev. Richard C. Norberg, who is conference minister of the United Church of Christ and president of the Northern California - Nevada Council of Churches.

The church was founded in 1960 under the direction of its minister, Rev. Benton S. Gaskell, and now occupies a four and one-half acre site at 145 Rock Hill Drive, Tiburon.

The building to be dedicated includes a chapel, class rooms, offices and a kitchen. A main sanctuary and class room unit will be constructed later.

Church To Show 'Teen Revolt' Film

A film entitled "Teen Revolt" showing young gang fighters and teen-age addicts and their view points on life will be shown tomorrow at the Southern Marin Assembly of God, Mill Valley.

The 30-minute film will be shown during the service beginning at 9:30 a.m. at the church at East Blithedale and Sycamore streets. It features interviews behavior extraordinary but think that their mothers "just need to be educated," explained Rev. James C. Walton Sr.

DON'T: OMIT THE ADDRESS!

Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance phone call.

TELEVISION REVIEW

'Wild, Wild West' Should Go Under

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Three new television series have a splendid chance to remain on the air, thanks to a fourth show which almost certainly will go under.

The beneficent but doomed series is "The Wild, Wild West," a show so bad that three other new efforts in the same time slot look almost good by comparison.

The beneficiaries are "Camp Runamuck," "Hank" and "Tammy." No world beaters themselves, they should collect enough rating points from "Wild West" to remain on the air all year.

It seems almost unfair to condemn a new show on only its second week on the air. But this one shouldn't live to see a third week.

Supposedly it is an Old West spoof on the James Bond craze. But it is neither exciting nor humorous.

Friday night's episode, "The Night of the Deadly Bed,"—CBS 7:30 p.m. EDT—had hero Robert Conrad escape death a half dozen times. He was almost garroted with a guitar string, almost brained by a shovel, almost blown up by dynamite and almost pulverized by a flying log. His closest escape was when a ceiling of spikes dropped down on his bed, an adventure which provided the title.

Hero Conrad played a government agent snooping around a Frenchman who plans to reclaim the empire of Mexico with himself as the new Napoleon.

Why not?

His plan is simple. To keep the United States from interfering this nut is building a monstrous railroad battering ram to destroy all the railroads in North America.

Right away you know this nut can't be all bad.

Conrad, in the role of Jim West—get it, west, like in Wild, Wild West—eventually foils the Frenchman's plans, but not before a series of bunglings that surely wins viewers' sympathy for the villain.

Three Marinites Enlist, Train At San Diego

Three Marin youths enlisted in the Navy this week and were sent to San Diego for recruit training, Chief Robert E. Betts of the Navy Recruiting Branch Station in San Rafael reported today.

The enlistees were:

William E. Kramer, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kramer, 121 Garden Avenue, Santa Venetia, a 1964 graduate of Terra Linda High School, who enlisted in the seaman recruit training program for four years.

Timothy D. Broome, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Broome, 1 Cottage Avenue, Mill Valley, a 1963 graduate of Tamalpais High School, who enlisted in the electronic field program for four years.

Kensell S. Schumacher, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keneth W. Schumacher, 74 Homestead Boulevard, Homestead Valley, a 1965 graduate of Tamalpais High School, who enlisted in the Navy's high school graduate training program.

Red 'N White Starts Year

Red 'n White, the San Rafael High School student newspaper, published the first issue of the 1965-66 school year yesterday with an emphasis on school spirit and participation in student body activities.

In a front page story, Jeff Allen, president of Associated Students, announced that there will be a student forum at least once a month, and each student will be invited to attend at least one forum.

Adler To Speak At Books Session

Mortimer Adler, philospher, lecturer and author, will be the keynote speaker and leader of the first of nine monthly Great Books seminars at the Peacock Gap Country Club Oct. 2 at 8 p.m.

Alder is the director of the Institute of Philosophical Research and associate editor of "Great Books of the Western World."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Devices Induce Sleep But Strangest Are Victim's Own

VAN DELLEN

The theory that a sleep center exists in the brain has many advocates. Electrosleep machines sold in Europe, and I understand in this country, are said to stimulate these centers and lead the insomniac into the arms of Morpheus.

The electrical stimulation is monotonous and causes either continuous tingling or pulsatile sensations over the temples or eyeballs. Time will tell whether the machine is an improvement on the ordinary sleeping pill.

MORE RATIONAL gadgets include those that relax emotional and muscular tension. The old-fashioned hot water bottle or heating pad is high on the list. Shades and masks to keep out the light are more popular and sensible. Beyond these we get into the dubious or absurd.

Sleep also can be induced by flashing beams of light into the eyes. Many devices were introduced for this purpose, varying from a miniature lighthouse next to the bed to a clockwork-driven assortment of little mirrors reflecting light. There is a possibility that many of these testimonials came from those hypnotized by the process. In others, the individual receives an electric shock on the leg that is synchronized with the light. I keep my fingers crossed when reading about these devices and the claims. The cost is excessive considering the small voltage generated by the machines.

THERE ARE innumerable records and tapes that are said to lull the insomniac to sleep. Perhaps we should say hypnotize rather than lull because some repeat "You are sleeping . . . you are sleeping." Others emit soothing sounds such as that of the sea and still others use poetry.

But the oddest of all sleep-inducers are performed by the victim prior to going to sleep and include special exercises and variety of rituals. Others must use certain night clothes, bedding, or pillows.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

BREATHING ACTION

J. M. B. writes: How does one breathe properly?

REPLY

Voluntarily. Many people inhale by raising the chest, expanding the thorax, and sucking in the abdomen. Others protrude the abdomen during inspiration to allow the diaphragm to descend. The latter is more efficient provided the abdominal muscles are pulled in during expiration so the diaphragm will go up and help force the air out of the lungs.

PROTEIN IN URINE

Mrs. DeM. writes: My 18-year-old son has protein in his urine. Is this serious?

REPLY

Albumin and other proteins in the urine are serious when they are caused by nephritis, nephrosis, bleeding, kidney tumors, and myelomas. They are not serious when they are caused by the effect of posture upon the kidney.

INVESTIGATE

N. M. writes: What is the cause of blood in the urine?

REPLY

There are numerous causes varying from stones to infection. The symptom should be investigated without delay. Meanwhile, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hematuria, or blood in the urine.

Today's Health Hint—

When annoyed with someone, discuss it in a frank and friendly manner.

Three Houses In Ross Valley

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

The next time you drive through picturesque Ross Valley, pause at the point where Redwood Drive and Brookwood meet, and look to the south.

Try, then, to visualize how this same area must have looked, centuries ago when its only inhabitants were the Indians. Or when it was the home of California pioneer James Ross, whose name has been perpetuated by the town. Or still later, after the extensive grounds had become the palatial estate of Edward Bosqui, "the father of fine printing in California."

For much of the material that follows, I am indebted to Laura Treat of Mill Valley, granddaughter of the Edward Bosquis who frequently visited her grandparents at their Ross estate.

MISS TREAT'S father was Archibald J. Treat, noted San Francisco lawyer who married Helen Bosqui. Their home was in Sausalito.

Along with the photographs reproduced on these pages, Miss Treat also made available to me her cherished copy of Edward Bosqui's memoirs, first printed in his own plant in 1904 and later reprinted.

THE SECOND Edward Bosqui home in Ross Valley was constructed in 1900. It, too, was destroyed by fire, succumbing in 1908, the day it was sold by Edward Bosqui.

THE HOUSE THAT stands today on the same Ross Valley site, using the original stone foundations, looks very much like its predecessor. But the tall pines are gone, and redwoods and firs now provide shade. The Clarence S. Burtchaells bought the handsome home in 1923.

EDWARD BOSQUI, early-day Ross Valley resident, was widely known for many contributions to early California, including his pioneering of fine printing. He had also played a prominent role in business, civic and cultural affairs of the state.

in 1885. It had been built upon the 23-acre site by James Ross in 1859, making use of an adobe-walled excavation for the story-deep basement and the foundation. That excavation, according to Miss Treat, had served as a garrison for soldiers during the days of the Indian fighting. And the foundation had been dug into the crest of an Indian mound.

THE 23 ACRES stretched from the Kent holdings on the south to what was the old railroad station, and on east along the county road (now Sir Francis Drake Boulevard) to the George Butler home that was to become the first unit of the College of Marin.

The Northwestern Pacific had tracks on the property. Many tall pines enhanced the grounds, and poplars lined an avenue that led to the house. The avenue was bridged across Corte Madera Creek.

Miss Treat says that it was her eldest aunt, Laura, who learned that the Ross estate was for sale. She made the discovery while visiting her close friend Abby Hopkins, whose own home stood where Ross General Hospital is now located.

INFORMED BY Laura, Edward Bosqui visited the Ross property and was so delighted with it he decided to make the purchase.

There was yet another creek near the foot of a steep wooded hill at the rear of the Bosqui home. From that hill stemmed wonderful springs, and the water rights were shared by the Bosquis and the Kents.

Water in the creek had once run a hand-adzed, hand-pegged mill that James Ross had used as a barn.

IN ADDITION to the main house, there was a second dwelling built for Mrs. Bosqui's widowed mother.

Other buildings on the property included a long, low structure for the house servants, a gardener's cottage on the creek bank that looked for all the world like it had been copied from an illustration for a Hans Christian Andersen story, a hothouse, a pigeon house, an aviary and a windmill for a deep well.

Three acres of garden and orchard encircled the big house. Beyond the orchard and on to the boundary of the lichen-covered split rail fence was a meadow in which horses and cattle grazed.

MISS TREAT recalls how her grandfather loved to look through a tracery of bamboo, and therefore planted some, with ferns at the base, near the ivy-covered house.

In the fall, haying crews came to cut and store the oats that grew wild in the fields.

SAYS MISS Treat: "The Ross place was largely self-supporting, which was fortunate, for friends who came for days stayed for weeks and sometimes even years. My grandfather's lavish hand and love of beauty created problems. He thought daffodils would be lovely in the orchard. They were, but soon the orchard was overgrown with them. So he had street vendors from the city come and take them by the baskets full. The same thing happened when he planted rows of double violets under the apple trees."

The house had seven bed-

The Ross Valley Story

Pioneer Printmaker Edward Bosqui Played Principal Role In Its History

THIS WAS the handsome young Edward Bosqui who came to California in 1850, arriving in San Francisco on his 18th birthday. He was to leave his imprint stamped indelibly upon the history of the area.

rooms, and still there was sometimes an overflow of friends in the guest cottage.

In his memoirs, Bosqui told of the fateful Sunday afternoon of March 14, 1897:

". . . WHILE reading in the southeast room of our house in Ross Valley, I noticed thin wreaths of smoke rising from beneath the veranda. Hastily entering the hall, I felt heated air in my face and realized the house was on fire. Looking toward the stairway, I saw smoke and the light of flames, and I shouted to my wife and daughter, Laura, to hasten out of the house. Taking in my arms my 2-year-old granddaughter, Helen Spinney, who stood by the side of her terrified grandmother, I got out onto the roof of the veranda.

"Smoke was issuing from doors and windows. Rushing back and forth in my helplessness and painfully anxious for the safety of my wife and daughter, who were tardy in following me, I determined to re-enter to save them or to share their fate. Then, to my relief, they appeared, coming out of the window.

"We descended to the ground by means of a frail trellis, which we expected would crash momentarily from our weight.

"IN THE meantime the fire had enveloped the whole upper story, and had our escape been delayed a few minutes longer, we must certainly have perished. As it was, we suffered from bruises and my hair and eyebrows were singed.

"In five minutes the whole house was a raging furnace. The flames rose to a great height and swept through the tall pines, destroying everything they reached. Half dazed, we retreated to our little cottage 200 yards away, where we watched sadly as the flames devoured our household treasures by which we had been so happily surrounded for many years.

"SURVEYING THE ruins sorrowfully, we were nevertheless impressed by the narrowness of our escape, and a feeling of gratitude for our deliverance reconciled us to the loss of the treasures we had held so dear."

The Bosquis built a second house on the foundations of the first. It, too, had seven bedrooms.

Miss Treat says: "My grandparents were not content unless the house was occupied by their children and their grandchildren." She adds that after the Bosquis' daughter Calista married Charles Spinney, they lived much of the time with her parents.

MISS TREAT recalls the "fun trips" to San Rafael where the family went by carriage about once a week to buy supplies for the home. Shopping was a real ceremony as the store owner would come to the carriage to take the order and stood by as a clerk stowed the parcels carefully in the vehicle.

Edward Bosqui was born in Montreal, Canada, on July 23, 1832, the oldest son in a family of seven children. His father, a cabinetmaker, was French; his mother, also born in Montreal, was of Scotch descent.

Young Bosqui had a great love for the beautiful and delighted to watch his father do exquisite woodcarving.

When he was 11 years old, he went to work in a bookstore, for the family was poor. He peddled books from door to door and at intervals attended school. An avid reader, he feasted on the books on the shop shelves. He also was interested in geology and liked to sketch natural beauty.

WHEN NEWS of the discovery of gold in northern California reached Canada, young Bosqui determined to go west. He traveled with a friend who had received some money from a family estate. They sailed from New York on March 26, 1850, to the mouth of the Rio Grande. There the friend bought mules, saddles and supplies.

Soon the duo was joined by another group, also bound for California. They journeyed across Mexico. Their horses and mules stampeded, so that much of the journey was on foot. At night they camped near Mexican villages, and if it had not been for the kindness of the poor peons, who shared their tortillas and frijoles with them, they would have starved.

Most of the party was ill with malaria when they finally reached Mazatlan. They sailed from there aboard a French ship, Camilla, to San Francisco. Bosqui agreed to work his way as a cabin boy.

THE CAMILLA anchored in San Francisco on July 23—young Bosqui's 18th birthday. For several days he looked for work and at the bank of Palmer, Cook & Co. on Portsmouth Square, was employed as clerk and messenger, carrying gold dust from various places of business to the bank.

The bank was housed in an old adobe, and at the north end of the building was the law office of H. H. Haight, who afterwards became governor of California. Bosqui became well acquainted with him.

The young bank messenger slept on a counter in the bank.

By December of 1850, young Bosqui had saved enough money to go to the mines. He chose Mariposa where Cook's brother, George, was in charge of one of Col. John C. Fremont's mines.

HE WENT TO Stockton on a crowded steamer and then traveled on foot to Mariposa. But the young man soon found his strength was not equal to the task of shoveling dirt and washing sand, so he sold the few ounces of gold he had grubbed from the earth and returned to San Francisco just after the big fire of 1851.

The bank building had been burned and Palmer, Cook & Co. had moved into temporary quarters. Bosqui resumed his duties with the bank but now he was in charge of rents from the company's real estate holdings.

IN THE SPRING of 1852, Bosqui met John Fremont for the first time. Bosqui wrote: "He was heavily bearded and looked weatherbeaten and bronzed by the sun and wind. Fremont was at that time in the prime of life, dignified yet genial and courteous. With a piercing bright eye, a fine head and a trim commanding figure, he fully realized my ideal of a hero."

On April 4, 1853, the California Academy of Sciences was organized, and Edward Bosqui was one of the 41 charter members. He became well acquainted with Prof. George Davidson, who conducted many scientific expeditions; with James Lick, who gave the academy much of his fortune, and with Charles F. Crocker and Sen. Leland Stanford, who generously supported the institution.

He admired Dr. Albert Kellogg, a naturalist. "His watercolor drawings of flowers were true to nature."

AFTER DR. Kellogg's death in 1888 a collection was made of his drawings, and their reproduction was in the charge of Edward Bosqui.

In December of 1853 Bosqui left for a visit to his Canadian home on the Winfield Scott, bound for Mexico. About 300 passengers were aboard, including Jose Yves Limantour, a French resident of Mexico. Limantour had made a claim for large portions of California, including the Tiburon Peninsula, four square leagues in San Francisco, the Farallones, Alcatraz and Yerba Buena Island.

The ship was wrecked on Anacapa Island but panic was prevented by the orders of Capt. Simon Blunt, U.S. Navy, who drew his pistol to prevent a mad rush to the lifeboats, and by quick-thinking from Limantour.

OF THE LATTER, Bosqui said: "He was one of the coolest and most self-possessed."

All aboard were saved and camped on a beach on the island. Bosqui organized a fishing group to provide food for the stranded. The most astonishing part of this episode is that Bosqui made a sketch of the sinking Winfield Scott.

After several weeks on the island, the shipwreck victims were picked up by another steamer and taken to Acapulco. Bosqui then crossed the Isthmus of Panama on mule-back and sailed for New York, arriving in a snowstorm. He was ill with Panama fever and went to Montreal where he saw "no charms in a Canadian winter." In two weeks he left for California, accompanied by his brother, Kenneth. Bosqui then resumed his duties with Palmer, Cook & Co.

As his responsibilities increased, so did his salary.

HE WROTE that partner Joseph Palmer's visit to Washington, D.C., where he was received by the President, feted and flattered, changed the fortunes of the bank. Palmer, Cook & Co. became involved in politics.

The first notable mistake was Palmer's rupture with Senator Gwin and support of the candidacy of David C. Broderick. Later John C. Fremont, a close friend of both Palmer and Cook, had their backing for his ill-fated candidacy for presidency of the United States.

Bosqui made several trips to look after the interests of Colonel Fremont and Joseph Palmer in the Pescadero grant on the San Joaquin River. He also took charge of Fremont's Mariposa grant.

A SMALL WAR was developing at Mariposa between a mine company and Fremont's men.

Colonel Fremont insisted he would go to the mine. Bosqui quoted Mrs. Fremont as saying: "You shall not go there. Your life is worth a thousand of such lives as those at stake at the camp."

Bosqui added: "Mrs. Fremont was a highly accomplished woman of fine intellect with a towering ambition and courage equal to her husband's. The acquisition of power and love of display and leadership were her ruling passions and caused much of her husband's trouble and disappointment."

THE FIRST public setback of the banking firm came after a large loan was refused to James King of William, publisher of the Bulletin, by a junior member of the firm. A few days later the Bulletin published a violent attack on Palmer, Cook & Co., and made editorial comments on the impending insolvency of the bank.

This was followed up day by day with similar charges which, while untrue and malicious, destroyed the bank's credit. It closed its doors early in 1858.

For a while after the bank closed, Bosqui was in charge of its property. He opened an office in the Naglee Building on

The Mansions Of Beautiful Ross Valley—

They've Seen The History Of The Area

MRS. CLARENCE S. Burtchaell poses beside the adobe brick foundations, a full story deep, that once held the mansions of the James Rosses and the Edward Bosquis and will still support the Burtchaell home today. Merchant Street in San Francisco. He became the agent for Edward Field, Montgomery Blair (subsequently a member of President Lincoln's cabinet) and Sen. David C. Broderick.

BOSQUI SAID arrangements for the duel between Broderick and Terry were discussed in his office. He was asked to witness the duel, in which Broderick was mortally wounded, but refused to do so. Because of his knowledge of banking and his familiarity with land grants in California, Bosqui was frequently appointed an appraiser and sometimes was forced to eject squatters.

A more pleasant interlude began in 1857. In the autumn of that year he began his courtship of Helen Van Allen.

Her father, a minister, had died crossing the plains on his way to California. Mrs. Van Allen remained in the East until her daughters were educated, then brought them to California. Helen, who had a beautiful voice, sang in the Episcopal Church, to which she belonged, and in the Catholic Church in San Francisco where Edward Bosqui was a member of the congregation.

C. GEORGE LEWIS, a cofounder of Shreve and Co., fancied himself in the role of Cupid when he invited Helen Van Allen to a dance and promised he would introduce her to "the handsomest man in San Francisco." He was disappointed when he did present Edward Bosqui to the pretty young singer to learn they had already met.

The courtship was a long one and it was May 4, 1859, when the couple exchanged marriage vows. Edward Bosqui and his wife went to live in a large house he had built on a 500-acre tract he had bought in the center of Moraga Valley about 10 miles from Oakland.

In the torrential rainfall of 1860 and 1861, the Bosqui ranch was flooded and many of the horses and cattle were drowned. The Moraga Valley place was sold after Bosqui was given a position at the Custom House in San Francisco. He and his family moved to San Francisco.

CONSTANT friction among the staff at the Custom House disgusted the ambitious Bosqui, who decided he would go into business for himself. He bought a half interest in a bookbinding firm with money loaned to him by William C. Ralston.

The partner paid little attention to the business so before long Bosqui had to assume the entire management. The business doubled within a year. The partnership was dissolved and Bosqui bought a bookbindery. And in November of 1863 established the business under the firm name of Edward Bosqui & Co.

Mrs. Archibald Treat (Helen Bosqui) said her father never had a partner in the business which flourished rapidly.

Later, letterpress printing was done in connection with bookbinding. Then in 1876 lithographic engraving and printing was added, and this became the chief department of the business.

EDWARD BOSQUI, with his artistic ability, prepared beautiful color pictures for printing with books. A splendid example of this is the illustration for "Grapes and Grapevines of California," which is the frontispiece for a reprint of the "Bosqui Memoirs" by Holmes Book Co. of Oakland.

The Bosqui firm published scores of books and pamphlets, all exceptional work. Often two colors were used in the printing. The bookbinding was splendid.

The edition of "Poems by Charles Warren Stoddard" is an exceptionally beautiful work. It is bound in a wine red cloth, stamped in gold on the side and back.

ONE OF THE best-known lithographs of the Bosqui firm is "View of San Francisco, formerly Yerba Buena, in 1846 and 1847."

After Mr. and Mrs. Bosqui came to Ross with their children, Laura E., Edward L., Helen (Mrs. Archibald Treat), Francis L., Calista (Mrs. Charles Spinney), Daniel, Benjamin and Caroline (Mrs. Howard Davis), the father frequently was away for long periods of time, attending to business affairs and appraising land.

Miss Treat remembers especially the wonderful hospitality at the Bosqui home.

BOSQUI ALSO frequently entertained friends in the Bohemian Club of San Francisco. He was a charter member of the club, organized in April, 1872.

While Bosqui was living in Ross he went to Southern California as one of the appraisers of Capt. John Bradbury's estate. He later examined a 30-league grant in Lower California for the widow of Col. Henry S. Burton (Dona Amparo Ruiz). As Bosqui spoke Spanish as well as French fluently, he had many friends among the early Californians of Spanish descent.

THE END OF his career as a distinguished printer came in 1906 when his business establishment in San Francisco was destroyed by the earthquake and fire.

The property in Ross was subdivided into what was known as the Bosqui Tract.

Miss Treat says: "The place never seemed the same after that—just the house and three acres." In 1908 the Ross property was sold to Radtke, a San Francisco jeweler. The house burned the same day it was sold. This time, however, the fire moved more slowly and much of the Bosqui possessions were saved.

Mr. and Mrs. Bosqui returned to San Francisco to live. He was active in the Bohemian Club and cultural groups until a short time before his death on Dec. 8, 1917.

Radtke built another house on the original site. It, too, has seven bedrooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence S. Burtchaell bought the house in September of 1923.

ALTHOUGH THE tall pines which beautified the Bosqui estate are gone, redwoods and firs shade the garden.

The interior of the house has been remodeled. The billiard room has been converted into a library. The attic was floored for a ballroom and the wood paneling of the living room is accented with gold imported paper.

As in Edward Bosqui's day, the Ross Valley site still serves as the location of a home planned for gracious living.

PSYCHOLOGY! A FACTOR IN THE STEREO HOME MUSIC SYSTEM as Dr. Harry F. Olson, RCA Laboratories, stated, "Sound reproduction should recreate for the listener a vivid recollection of . . . the live presentation and give a realistic impression "regardless of whether he has had the live experience or not." Thus, the live performance is the standard of comparison. Isn't it logical to assume that the sound of the symphony be that of the reverberant symphony hall with its many reflections; the sound of the dance band be that of a large hall; the sound of a night club combo be that of a smaller hall with the background noise of people; and the sound of the chamber group be that of a smaller less reverberant room?

The psychological factors that play an important part in the way we hear music are dynamics, loudness, reverberation time, background noise, and of course in reproduced music—the distortion in the system. Dynamics is generally rather well preserved in our modern LP records, in our tapes, and in FM broadcasts.

Loudness is a psychological factor which requires explanation. At a live performance, the peak sound levels will be as high as 100 decibels. The average home listeners adjust their volume controls so that the peak sound levels may reach 70 or 80 decibels. However, some people adjust the volume level control so that the loudest passages reach 70 decibels and the average level is very soft and almost in the random noise level of the residence. Naturally, in the latter case, symphonic or dance orchestra music will lose its live-like quality. The loud swells of sound pressure level that reach our ears during the live performance have been removed from the reproduction; thus, psychologically the sound has been changed.

Reverberation in the average home is very different than the symphony hall or dance hall or auditorium. In the large halls, the reverberation time for the middle range of tones may vary from 1.2 seconds to 2 or more seconds depending on the cubic volume of the room. Generally, these halls are adjusted acoustically for optimum reverberation at the low, middle, and high tonal ranges. The average home may have a reverberation of about 0.7 seconds at 100 cycles, 0.5 seconds at 1000 cycles, and about 0.4 seconds at 10,000 cycles. In stereo recordings, some microphones are sometimes used to record reflected sound to compensate for the lack of reverberation in the average home.

Raffia Dolls Are Festival Tradition

Belvedere Women Put Skills To Work For Sunny Hills

Sunny Hills Belvedere Guild No. 3 has been making raffia dolls for the annual Grape Festival for more years than its senior members can remember.

Mrs. Harry Duncan, president of Belvedere Guild's executive board, recalls the early 1930s as an approximate birthdate of the popular raffia dolls.

MRS. DUNCAN and Mrs. Edna Halloran, under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Allen, formed the first Belvedere Sunny Hills guild, which began its Grape Festival participation with the making of garden aprons. As the guild grew, membership increased, so that it became necessary to form additional guilds. Belvedere Guild No. 3 now carries on the tradition of making the Grape Festival apron project.

"In the early days," says Mrs. Duncan, "we bought our raffia by the pound in San Francisco's Chinatown. Now, the members purchase it from the city's wholesale florists."

Raffia is the fiber of the leaves of palms grown in Madagascar and Japan. It is bought in hanks of five to six-foot lengths.

WHEN THE guild members get the raffia from the market it is braided. It must then be unbraided and straightened. To accomplish this, they soak them in members' swimming pools, then hang the strands up to dry.

From the dried fibers the women fashion attractive and unique dolls which they dress as gypsies, farmers, fishermen, cowboys, etc. Some are attired in modern shifts.

Guild member Mrs. Raymund J. Millzner recalls that their earlier creations were elaborately dressed as brides, southern belles and hula girls.

EACH YEAR the guild members make 25 to 30 raffia dolls, to become one of the many sell-out products featured at the Grape Festival.

The 66th annual Grape Festival will be held next Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Marin Town and Country Club grounds in Fairfax.

SUNNY HILLS Belvedere Guild No. 3 Secretary Mrs. Robert Sitkin, left, and President Mrs. Corwin Hinshaw begin the shaping of a raffia doll to be sold at next Saturday's Grape Festival.

FINISHED raffia dolls, ready for the Grape Festival, are displayed by Mrs. Frank Colvan, left, and Barbara Bridge as they put a coat on a little fisherman. The dolls have become a traditional Sunny Hills fund-raising sales item at the festivals. The 1965 festival will be held next Saturday for the first time on the Marin Town Country Club grounds in Fairfax. (Independent-Journal photos)

THE PINCZOWSKIS LIKE IT IN MARIN

IT'S A long ways from Poland and the concentration camps of World War II as Ahron Pinczowski relaxes on the patio of the family home in San Rafael and listens to the guitar-playing of son Benjie. Youngest son Mendie sits on his father's lap. Also enjoying the music are Mrs. Pinczowski and daughter Florence.
(Independent-Journal photos)

By CONNIE RICHARDSON

Ahron Pinczowski dreamed from boyhood of coming to the United States from Poland, and he kept that dream through all five years in concentration camps.

After years of waiting for entry permits he was finally allowed to come with his family.

"We arrived in 1964 and came to San Francisco where a cousin has a grocery business," says Ahron. "My wife, being Israeli, found the fog of San Francisco too cold and so we went to Los Angeles for some sunshine."

HOWEVER, THE climate there had far less appeal than the fog and the family returned to settle in Marin County three months ago, purchasing a home on Eucalyptus Lane in San Rafael.

"We like the people up here; they smile more than those in Los Angeles, with everyone rushing around," added Becky, his attractive, auburn-haired wife.

The family includes Benjamin, 16, tall, wiry and handsome, with dark hair neatly cut; Bluma, 14, who prefers to be called Florence, the English version of her given name; and the "baby," Menachem, Mendie for short, a blonde, blue-eyed charmer of 4.

NEW TO MARIN during the summer vacation months, the children kept busy. Benjie took on the job of painting the entire exterior and interior of their house. He also helped his father terrace and plant the difficult upslope in the backyard.

"The people around here call us horses," smiles Ahron, "because they see us always working."

"I like to work," adds Benjie, with a philosophy not entirely universal among boys his age.

In the presence of a stranger, young Mendie was notably well behaved.

"OF COURSE, WE love every bone in his body," says his proud father. "The difference in age from Benjamin and Florence help make Mendie their special boy. They like taking care of him."

Now 46, Ahron Pinczowski was born in Krakow, Poland, where his father was vice-mayor. "He was a popular man with the townspeople. Not political, but he was very well liked," Ahron recalls. "My mother, all her life, wanted to come to the United States, so she made us learn English. She was always dreaming of being happy in America."

After completing high school, young Ahron enrolled for a three-year course in the college for hairdressers. "Because I myself am particular about appearances," he explains, "I enjoy very much making people look better and be happier."

AHRON WAS 21 when taken to the first of several concentration camps, in Poland, Germany and Austria.

"I was strong and able to work in the fields and munitions factories, so I am alive. In camp I never lost hope and tried to sing and to make others laugh. My family? I lost all my family. They were taken out with some other people and I never saw them again," he says.

When the liberation forces freed him May 5, 1945, Ahron was a skinny 70 pounds. "We kissed them and sang, Hip Hooray, U S A, to the soldiers of the 65th Division, Company A."

A LINGUIST, speaking four languages fluently with a command of two more, Ahron was able to assist as interpreter after release from the hospital.

"I went to Italy from Austria and worked again as hair stylist in Rome, Modena, Bari and Milan, where I did coiffeurs for women only, although I am also trained to style for men," Ahron says.

"In 1947, I went to Israel. I was an old bachelor of 26," he grins.

NOT FOR long. His work as chief stylist in the largest hotels in Tel Aviv and Haifa, with employees under his instruction, made him many friends and he was introduced to his pretty bride-to-be.

"Instant love," he says now, smiling at his wife, whose face suddenly became rosy. "And we married three weeks later."

During the following years,

The Pinczowskis Made It To America

Ahron gained a reputation in his profession.

"Israel was a great tourist country in those early years of its existence," Ahron explains.

"It was and still is an energetic, fast-growing place. I was hairdresser for the wife of the ex-president of France, Mdme. Auriol, and for prima ballerina Aletizia Markova and other important visitors."

AT LAST, after five years of waiting, the Pinczowski family touched down on American soil in 1964.

"Things that are worthwhile are worth waiting for," Becky smiles, watching the antics of her youngest.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinczowski not only love and cherish their children, they know them.

"Take Bluma, now," the father speaks thoughtfully. "She loves children and wants to be a kindergarten teacher. She likes to study and reads a lot. She is waiting to make friends at school.

"BENJIE," the mother interrupts, "has always wanted to be an actor."

"I want to be in show business," her son states enthusiastically. "I play the guitar and am teaching myself the banjo. I want to go to drama school."

His parents would prefer him to go through college.

"It is not easy to know just what advice to give him right now," says Becky, with a sigh all mothers would recognize and understand.

The Pinczowski family is happy living in San Rafael where Ahron is associated with the Beauty Salon operated by Bill and Estelle Whalen in San Anselmo.

"MR. AND MRS. Whalen are two of the nicest people we have met," says Becky.

"By word of mouth, we are having more ladies come in," adds Ahron with pride.

Recently the salon cooperated with the Fairfax Women's Club to present a hair and wig styling show. Appearing on stage were attractive models aiding Ahron in demonstrating his skills and techniques. One of the most interesting events of this show was the styling of a wig in four different ways.

A HAIRDRESSER first in Europe and then in Israel, Ahron Pinczowski now practices that profession with the Beauty Salon in San Anselmo. Here he demonstrates his skill at wig styling.

Mr. Hardy's 'Tiger-By-The-Tail'

He Couldn't Turn Loose Of Car Restoration Job

By DON KEOWN

"It was," says Barry Hardy in describing his first classic automobile restoration project, "like grabbing a tiger by the tail. I didn't dare let go.

"And the more parts I removed, the more trouble I found. So I just had to keep on going."

That first automobile that Hardy restored was a 1954 Mercedes-Benz 220 convertible.

AND THE satisfaction that Hardy derived from the completed job was so great that he promptly went out and grabbed himself a second tiger—or at least another spirited member of the cat family. This time it was a Jaguar XK120M convertible, or drophead, that he purchased and restored.

The results of the two projects will be on display tomorrow when Mr. and Mrs. Hardy show their two automobiles at the Peacock Gap Concours d'Elegance.

The Mercedes Benz will be entered in competition, the Jaguar will be shown out of competition.

FOR THE Hardys, tomorrow's big show, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Peacock Gap Country Club, San Rafael, for the benefit of the Florence Crittenton Home in San Francisco, marks an exciting milestone.

It marks the first time they have displayed either of their cars in a show.

"It's a big thrill," says Anne Hardy, who has become as much a fine car addict as her husband.

Hardy, an insurance executive, says it all began back in the spring of 1962 when he went automobile hunting in search of a small car for his wife.

"I SAW AN automobile on a used car lot for sale," he says. "It was not at all the kind I had in mind, but the lines were so appealing that I asked by wife to see it. She liked it as much as I did. And so we bought it."

Says Hardy: "I knew then that the car would require some work. But little did I realize the extent of that work."

To start with, the Hardys didn't like the three-color paint job. And the carpeting was in bad condition.

"AFTER BRINGING the car home, I removed the carpets, and right then, I began to suspect that the restoration would be more than I had anticipated," Hardy relates. "The floor under the carpets was damp and rusty."

Next he began removing arm rests, rear jump seats and other parts. Each removal revealed wooden parts that were rotting and deteriorating.

Hardy says he had not previously realized the amount of wood that had gone into the construction of such a car.

"Under the step plates, the wood was crumbling. The door frames, also of wood, were rotten. The arm rests in the rear and the frame of the jump seat were wood. The bow around the rear of the body of the car where the canvas top is attached was also wood and in poor condition."

IT WAS THEN that Hardy began to feel like the man with

ALL READY FOR THE BIG AUTO SHOW

Classic Cars Gleam Like New

LUCKILY FOR Barry Hardy of San Rafael, when he began his automobile restoration hobby, he already had on hand a considerable quantity of tools. But his previous efforts had been limited to minor mechanical repairs. He now has to his credit two complete restoration jobs on classic automobiles.

a tiger by the tail.

"Before I was through, I had all the seats, front and rear side panels off the doors and the top completely removed."

The gasoline tank was removed, the radiator was taken out and cleaned, the fenders and running boards were dismantled, the front and rear bumpers were taken off, straightened and rechromed. Chrome moldings and the radiator shell received the same treatment.

BUT HARDY was just getting started.

Next the headlights, tail lights, fog lights and signal lights, front and back, were removed for repair. In doing this, Hardy had to be careful to mark all wiring so that it could be reassembled properly.

The entire inside of the trunk section came out. New parts were made and put in place.

The interior wood of the doors and above the dashboard was stripped of the old varnish, sanded smooth and recoated with a clear plastic.

"MANY OF THE bolts and screws were so rusted they had to be hacksawed or chiseled off," Hardy recalls. "Then, of course, the holes had to be rebored and rethreaded."

Hardy, fortunately, was blessed with a certain native gift for things mechanical, although his work on cars had always been limited to minor repairs. And he already had on hand woodworking equipment.

"So," he says, "after scattering car parts all over the garage, I started to cut from wood the necessary replacements. All the panels were cut from waterproof plywood and all the heavy parts such as door frames were carved to fit from a piece of kiln dried Philippine mahogany."

HOURS WERE spent scraping and sanding rust from the metal of the body, floors and fender.

Next came the leather: "The leather to replace the seat covering was purchased and dyed to match the original color. Not having a sewing machine of sufficient weight to do the job, we had to have this work performed in an upholstery shop."

Also "farmed out" was the painting of the car.

The old paint was stripped down to shiny metal, and a black lacquer applied.

"WHEN THE car was returned to our garage from the paint shop, the assembly of all the interior plus lights, bumper and top began," Hardy relates.

And he adds with a smile: "Then, just when it looked like we were about finished, we noticed that the dash, also leather covered, now looked shabby in comparison with the rest of the car. So my wife said she would re-cover it with new leather."

This proved, Mrs. Hardy says, an especially demanding chore, since all the dials had to be loosened, and the tiny chrome strips (bolted to the dash with bolts about the size of large pinheads) removed.

THE OLD leather was then ripped away and new cemented in its place.

There was yet one other major hurdle—the replacement of the convertible top.

The top is double with padding between for soundproofing, and this with the added weight of a heavy frame created several hours of anxiety for the hardworking Hardy. "I began to wonder if I'd ever get it back on, as the tolerance of fit is so critical where the metal mechanism bolts to the body of the car that perfection is required."

FINALLY, however, this, too, was accomplished.

In all, Hardy had devoted virtually every weekend and many of his after-work evenings to the project for a full year.

But he had discovered that what had seemed to be a tedious undertaking at the outset had developed into a challenge and fun.

Thus, the acquisition of the Jaguar and a second restoration project. That car was acquired in May of 1964.

"IT HAD BEEN used in hill-climbing competition and was pretty well battered," Hardy says. "But I thought I could fix it up, and decided to give it another whirl."

While the problems involved in the Mercedes and the Jaguar jobs were somewhat different, the amount of work required was about the same for each. And again, over a period of a year, Hardy restored the beauty to an automobile.

The Jaguar is the first model of the K120 series to be manufactured by Jaguar Cars Ltd. and represented a complete redesigning of the body and engine. This, Hardy says, gave him an added interest in his second acquisition.

STILL THE Mercedes-Benz which he will be showing in competition at tomorrow's Peacock Gap show sponsored by the Marin Circle of the Florence Crittenton Home remains Hardy's favorite.

"I just like the Mercedes better. It was my first. And it was the finer car to begin with," he says.

He compares the two to a bronco and a gentle riding horse — "the Jaguar is the bronco, the Mercedes the gentle riding horse."

The Hardys have other cars, but it is the Mercedes-Benz and the Jaguar that occupy the garage at their home at 2 Cushing Avenue, San Rafael.

THE TWO classic cars are used quite frequently for pleasure trips and rides.

Hardy says he would have shown the Mercedes-Benz at last year's Peacock Gap concours "except that we were in the East on vacation at the time."

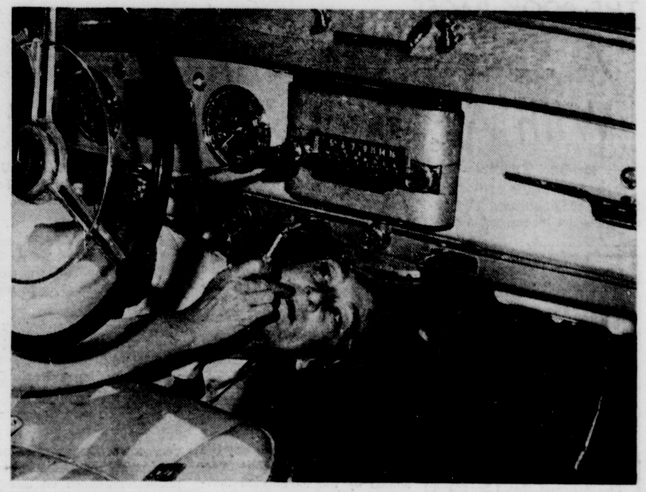

Does he plan additional competition in the future?

"We'll wait and see how we come out at Peacock Gap," he says.

FOND AS HE is of his two classic automobiles, and especially of the Mercedes Benz, Hardy admits that he is toying with the idea of selling them in order to purchase yet a third car — one in need of restoration, naturally.

"I guess I've got the bug," he says. "I'm the happiest when I'm out in the garage tinkering with one of the cars. And a restoration job is the most satisfying kind of tinkering."

Mrs. Hardy smiles. "I can understand the enjoyment he gets from working on the cars. But I'm not so sure that I approve of selling our Mercedes."

ANNE HARDY played her part, too, in the the restoration of the classic cars. Here she is shown at work in the dashboard replacement phase of the Mercedes-Benz project that included a complete re-covering with leather.

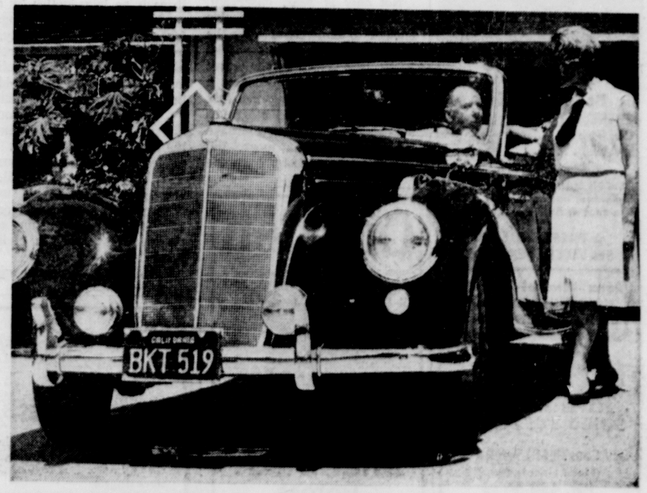

THE JAGUAR XK120M will be shown by Barry Hardy for display only at tomorrow's big Concours d'Elegance at Peacock Gap in San Rafael. He gives the car, already gleaming, a final polish.

THE ADJUSTMENT of the clock of his 1954 Jaguar drophead (convertible) XK120M commands the attention of owner Barry Hardy here. It was often the small details, Hardy discovered, that were the most time consuming in his ambitious automobile restoration projects. But in the long run, he found it all worthwhile and is now anxious for a third undertaking.

A TIRE CHECK is made of his Mercedes-Benz convertible 220 by Barry Hardy in the sunshine outside the Hardy garage in San Rafael. The Hardys often use their classic automobiles for pleasure trips.

THE BOOK PAGES

A Season Spent In Travel With An American Naturalist

By DON KEOWN

It may be a little early to be thinking of Christmas gifts. Nevertheless, let us suggest a copy of Edwin Ray Teale's "Wandering Through Winter" as an ideal present for anyone interested in the outdoors, and especially for the conservationist.

Those who have enjoyed Teale's earlier "North With the Spring," "Journey Into Summer," and "Autumn Across America" will know what to expect.

Now during the fourth season of the year, naturalist Teale and his wife travel from the Pacific coastline of southern California to the Atlantic shores of northermost New England, covering 20,000 miles in all, and observing and recording along the way the sights, sounds and smells overlooked by the too-hurried traveler.

What makes this book such a special delight are the catholic interests of the Teales. Perhaps their love for birds predominates. But they have a strong affection, too, for animals, for plants, for insects and for geology and astronomy.

Through the Teales you will witness the annual sea migration of the great gray whales, wonder at the size of giant cacti and the toughness of other desert plants, witness the poorwill in winter hibernation, observe one of those once familiar but now fast disappearing prairie dog villages, tour the town famous for its white squirrels, watch the rare whooping crane in flight, marvel at the soaring bald eagle, be initiated into the marvels of the catfish family, go diamond hunting, collect maple sugar, harvest witch hazels, study the structure of the snowflake, scan the skies through a private observatory, admire the beauty of an ice storm, examine fossils, the road runner, the smoke tree, deer in their winter quarters, salamanders, cat-tails, beavers, monarch butterflies, chickadees, mice, grouse, pelicans, etc.

Not only is Teale observant, but he is also knowledgeable enough to understand when he has seen, and articulate enough to describe vividly and interpret fully. Into his text he crams a wealth of fascinating sidelight information. His photographs are intriguing enough to make the reader wish for more. And the book as a whole, from the very attractive snow scene on the front of the dustjacket to the photo reproduced on this page from the back of that cover, can only be described as a discovery. In between those two illustrations is a treasure trove into which the nature enthusiast will want to delve time and time again, savoring the kind of contents that never lose their fresh appeal.

WANDERING THROUGH WINTER by Edwin Way Teale, Dodd, Mead and Co., 370 pages, $6.50.

NOT MAN APART edited by David Brower, Sierra Club, 160 13½-by-10-inch pages, $20 until Oct. 1, $25 thereafter.

CHURCHILL'S HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING PEOPLES arranged for one volume by Henry Steele Commager, Dodd, Mead & Co., 475 pages, $7.95.

BIG AND beautiful in the traditional already well established by the Sierra Club for its exhibit format series is "Not Man Apart," a study in photographs of the Big Sur country.

Synchronized with the photographic work of such camera artists as Ansel Adams, Philip Hyde, Steve Crouch, Cedric Wright, Edward Weston, William Garnett and Eliot Porter are lines from the poetry of the late Robinson Jeffers, so intimately associated with this wild coastline.

The Sierra Club this time is forced to admit that its chances of fostering a national seashore or park preserve are slim. But it feels strongly that there are other approaches deserving of early action that could protect the unspoiled beauty of the area.

The photos are 92 in number, 28 of which are in color. And as one would expect from past Sierra Club ventures, their impact is breathtaking. In addition to the sensitive verse by Jeffers, there is an introduction by conservationist Margaret Owings, a foreword by Loren Eisely, a preface by editor David Brower and a brief essay too by Jeffers in which the late poet said of the region he loved so ardently: " . . . Here was contemporary life that was also permanent life, and not shut from the modern world but conscious of it and related to it, capable of expressing its spirit but unencumbered by the mass of poetically irrelevant details and complexities that make a civilization."

Even those who cannot understand the fullest meaning of those words will have no difficulty comprehending the photos that follow. They offer a message on behalf of wilderness conservation that is as clear and urgent as it is eloquent.

NATURALIST Edwin Way Teale is pictured at one of his stopping points during his 20,000-mile trip that took him and his wife from the California desert to the snowbanks of Maine and resulted in the book, "Wandering Through Winter."

SIR WINSTON Churchill's "History of the English-Speaking Peoples" stands as one of the great works of scholarship of this century.

It must have been, then, with considerable trepidation that American historian Henry Steele Commager undertook the task of arranging the original four volumes into a single volume.

Steele faced the challenge not only of making his selections so as not to interfere with the flow of the story, but also of preserving the distinctive eloquence of the narrator.

The massive, original history will, of course, remain the book for professional historians and other more serious students. But Commanger may well have opened a door for those without the time and patience—and perhaps the need—to absorb all of the vast detail from Churchill's immense research to familiarize themselves with at least the principal points in one of mankind's most vital stories.

Certainly the grand command of language that marked both the speaking and the writing Churchill remains to be savored, for Commager has avoided any rewriting.

And in making his selections of material, Commanger has aimed his content especially at Americans, giving proportionately more space to those events most directly effecting the development of our country.

A frontispiece portrait of Sir Winston by Karsh, some superb illustrations, maps and genealogical tables add to the impressiveness of what seems a worthwhile and ably conducted project.

Sleuths & Suspense

I HIDE, WE SEEK by Richard Martin Stern, Scribner's, 252 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

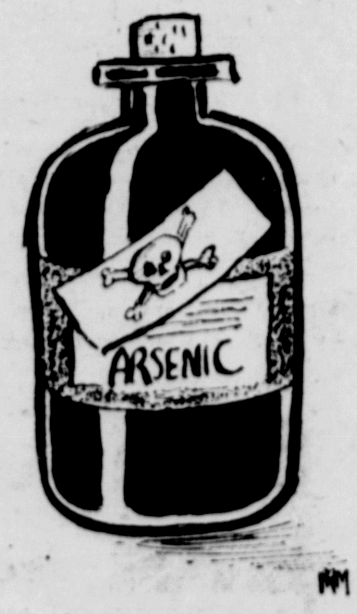

With his newest novel, "I Hide, We Seek," Richard Martin Stern develops as sort of an American John Le Carre.

He writes a tight, tense, realistic story in the Le Carre pattern with just a bit of the cryptic touch that also distinguishes yet another Briton, Len Deighton, from his fellow writers.

"I Hide, We Seek" is set principally in Scotland. American scientist John Ross is embittered by the treatment he has been accorded in his homeland and may be on the verge of yielding to Communist temptations to defect.

The other principal characters are Alan Bennett, the U.S. agent whose assignment it is to prevent Ross' defection, and Denise Walden, the young woman who is caught between the two men and attracted by both.

Stern keeps his story believable, avoiding exaggeration and unnecessary dramatics, and even the final climactic scenes in the ruins of a Scottish castle ring true.

The Route Today

THE LEWIS AND CLARK TRAIL by Calvin Tomkins, Harper and Row, 117 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Calvin Tompkins, a New Yorker writer, has briefly retold the story of the Lewis and Clark expedition in a book profusely illustrated with photographs taken along the route today.

"The Lewis and Clark Trail" doubles as a historic recital and a field guide to points of interest for tourists who wish to retrace the route that was traveled with such difficulty in 1804-06. A series of maps at the end provides the "trail guide."

An introduction by Secretary of Interior Stuart L. Udall, combined with the pictures and maps, serves to point up the need to prevent loss, through "development," of both scenic beauties and points of historic interest.

A WHEAT FIELD near Three Forks, Mont., along the historic route that was once the Lewis and Clark trail is among the illustrations included by Calvin Tomkins in his book, "The Lewis and Clark Trail." The book retraces the course of the expedition with a strong appeal for the preservation of scenic beauty and historic sites.

Our Reviewers And The New Reading

Anti-Hero Again

THE RETURN OF LANCE TENNIS by Laurence Snelling, Holt, Rinehart, Winston, 189 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

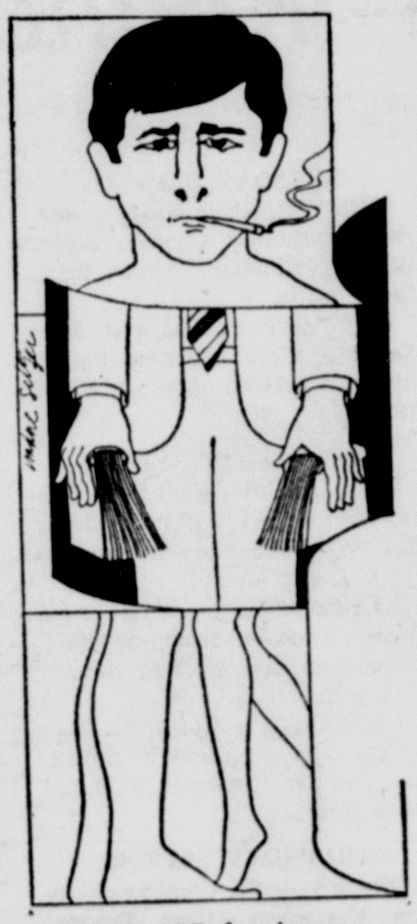

Such a devil, that Lance Tennis! Just as witty, sophisticated and daring as he is unprincipled, cunning and rapacious!

In short, here we meet again that favorite of modern times, the brilliant and boorish anti-hero. It is difficult to imagine what would make him palatable at this point—talk about overexposure — but certainly Laurence Snelling offers no clue.

For those who care, and some high school sophomores just may find portions of the book faintly amusing, Lance dumps his dull wife and job as teaching assistant at a large university for beatnik life in New Orleans. There he shafts all comers: Foiling his pursuers, passing off Ezra Pound's poetry as his own, persuading a beautiful moron to keep him.

His wickedness knows no bounds, it seems, but the sin that's unforgivable is the unblinking tedium he inflicts.

But one must remember this is a first novel and Snelling does show a certain virtuosity in keeping Lances' immoral action, predictable as it is, going at a commendable clip. He may well put aside childish things and write a novel.

JACKET ART for Laurence Snelling's first novel, "The Return of Lance Tennis," is by Isadore Seltzer.

The Innocent Spy?

MATA HARI by Sam Waagenaar, Appleton-Century, 306 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"For close to 50 years the Mata Hari story has been told by authors who based their information on hearsay. Facts were not only rare, they were non-existent . . . This book is based on facts."

With these words Sam Waagenaar, a Hollander now living in Rome, opens the introduction to his "Mata Hari."

Waagenaar first became interested in the story of the exotic dancer, who was executed by the French as a spy in World War I, when he was engaged to do some research for a movie on her life in 1931. He found reason to doubt many of the tales that had been accepted as fact.

Subsequently, deepening his search, Waagenaar came to the conclusion that Margaretha Geetruida Zelle MacLeod, the woman who danced under the name of Mata Hari, was not a spy for the Germans at all. Her execution, he contends, was the result of a spiteful vendetta by Captain Ladoux of the French Intelligence Bureau.

Waagenaar has assembled quite a thorough dossier on Mata Hari, following her from bed to bed, as it were, across much of Europe. The case he makes for her innocence, however, seems scarcely more convincing than that which Captain Bouchardon made for her guilt and presented to the military court that sentenced her to death.

The Festivals

FIESTA TIME IN LATIN AMERICA by Jean Milne, Ward Ritchie Press, 235 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Sometimes it seems that every day is a fiesta day in Latin America.

Jean Milne, well acquainted with our neighbors to the south, has compiled a listing of these festivals and holy days.

Dividing them by months, she provides a wealth of information on them — origins, traditional observances, costumes, dances, rituals, etc.

There is also, at the back of the book, an indexing by countries for the convenience of readers.

Here's a book that is especially helpful to travelers bound for Latin America and hopeful of enjoying some of the great fetes. It is pleasurable reading, too, for the armchair traveler appreciative of the customs and beliefs of other peoples.

On Lifemanship

ANTI - WOO, Gambits for Non-Lovers, by Stephen Potter, McGraw-Hill Book Co., 110 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Those who have read Potter's "Lifemanship" and "Gamesmanship" will welcome the first in a series of Lifemanship guides, and those who haven't should.

Anti-Woo is a basic manual for disentanglement — maybe even the definitive work—and those who are Lifemanship initiates will not be surprised to meet again such redoubtable Lifemen as Gattling-Fenn, Gozzler and Cogg-Willoughby, outlining the ploys with blithe cunning.

Practitiouers of One-Upmanship will have no trouble mastering Anti - Woo techniques, which include Envisagement of Post Marital Behaviour-Deterioration and Importance of Being Noble or If You Can't Be Noble, Attack. Other sections take up Dangers of Compatibility, Danger Signals for Women and the Coad Scale of Progressive Rifts.

It's amusing, British humor for those who ARE amused. . . .

"Should All Stretch Fabrics Be Drycleaned?"

To be blunt, no. Stretch fabrics are manufactured in different ways. In some, the yarn is physically or chemically modified. In others, a rubber core yarn is wrapped with a textile yarn. Some also use a spandex yarn such as Lyca, Vyrene, Blue C and others.

Stretch fabrics are drycleanable or wetcleanable depending upon the fiber content of the fabric and construction of the garment. If the stretch fabric contains rubber, it should NOT be drycleaned. Drycleaning solvents have an adverse effect on rubber. Stretch fabrics containing rubber should be wetcleaned.

Be certain to keep the hang tags on your stretch fabric garments and attach them to the garment when you send it to your cleaner. Remember, too, when selecting a stretch fabric, that the amount of speed of recovery, after stretching, is as important as the stretch. If the yarn doesn't recover, elbows, knees, shoulder and seat areas will bag and sag with wear and cleaning.

The great art of Francois Couperin le Grand is lost on the piano keyboard. It is only on the harpsichord that the delicate and varied effects of these pieces for plucked strings are properly heard.

Although Couperin didn't originate the attachment of fanciful titles to short instrumental pieces, he certainly is synonymous with this practice.

The first work, longest of those on this lp, is a satire on a revival musicians' union of Couperin's time. Many of these short bon-bons are recorded here for the first time in stereo.

Sound is excellent.

MARC - ANTOINE CHARPENTIER: Music for Port-Royal and First Tenebrae Lesson for Holy Wednesday — Andre Vessieres, bass with instrumental and vocal ensemble led by Roger Blanchard — Nonesuch Stereo H-71040:

Port-Royal was a celebrated and eventually notorious convent in 17th century France. The five works on this album were composed especially for the nuns, with many of their names even indicated on the solo parts. First stereo recordings of these works.

When A Bureau Drawer Sticks

Handyman's Page

A bureau drawer that sticks can be fixed by anyone—if impatient, forceful tugging and shoving haven't rendered it completely useless.

The sticking usually is caused by one of two things: Either the wood has absorbed too much moisture from the air, or one or more parts of the drawer have come loose.

VERY OFTEN nothing more is required to make a drawer operate smoothly than rubbing the sliding parts with paraffin or one of the lubricants especially made for use on wood. This treatment should be repeated about once a year or whenever the drawer shows signs of becoming balky again.

If the drawer appears to be in good condition, yet the rubbing does not eliminate the sticking, try sandpapering the sliding parts. While planing is often recommended, this should be done only as a last resort because of the danger of taking off too much wood. In either case, seal the newly exposed wood pores with a coat of shellac.

While you're at it, you might as well shellac all inside surfaces of the drawers.

WHEN PART OF a drawer has come loose, it should be repaired in the same way as it was originally constructed. That is, use the same type of fastening: Glue where glue had been used; brads where brads had been used. Be certain to scrape off any traces of the old adhesive before applying the new. And, after removing any loose brads, don't use the same holes to renail.

The exception to this is when you have enough knowledge of carpentry to make what you think will be a change for the better.

In using glue, make sure it's one of the strong wood adhesives and not one of the types generally used for paper, cardboard and other light materials.

SOMETIMES A sticking drawer will open a little, but not all the way. A lighted electric bulb placed in the opening will shrink the wood and permit the drawer to be opened, but this must be done very carefully so that the bulb doesn't touch anything that will ignite.

When a drawer will not open even the tiniest bit—and when removing adjacent drawers is of no help in prying it loose—you have no choice but to remove the back of the bureau or cabinet.

The back usually is attached with small nails or screws so that it can be taken off and replaced without damaging the rest of the bureau.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔Set out calendulas (pot marigolds) from flats for winter bloom. The Pacific Beauty strain produces fine clear shades of yellow and orange double blooms for cutting and garden show. Give them good drainage, ordinary garden soil. Snapdragons, violas, pansies and stock should all go in without delay if you want them to bloom before spring.

✔Continue watering lawns heavily but at infrequent intervals. If Bermuda Grass is your problem, this is the time to get rid of it with materials available at your nursery. Continue with regular feedings for a bright green color that will last well into winter.

✔Remove faded blooms from roses at least once a week and continue regular watering and feeding programs.

✔This is the time to start setting out native shrubs, trees and groundcovers, so see your nurseryman for the best varieties of ceanothus, fremontia, toyons and other fine California plants. Most of them are sun-loving, drought resistant and need little care.

✔When buying daffodil bulbs, don't overlook the small ones such as Hoop Petticoat and February Gold for close-up spring pictures.

✔It's leaf-falling time, and the wise homeowner keeps the dead leaves regularly raked so as not to smother his grass.

It's Perennial Planting Time In Marin Again

Gardening Page

Now is the best time of the year to plant perennials, according to the California Assn. of Nurserymen.

Especially true if you need them in quantity, because many varieties are available now in flats. Blooms next spring and summer are assured when you plant now.

TAKE THE perennial English primroses for example:

Most nurseries have them now in mixed colors of the latest large-flowered hybrids. You can set out a whole flat of 50 to 100 plants at very small cost. Next spring they will be available only as field grown clumps or in pot—at an increased cost.

The popular white candytuft and the multihued sun roses (Helianthemum) are excellent ground cover subjects and are available now in flats or small bands. If your taste runs to yellow or orange, you might wish to cover a lot of ground with the sturdy gazanias.

CLUMPS OF chrysanthemums are tops for fall color. See them now in the nursery, blooming in pots and one-gallon containers. Several types are available, from the small pompons to the large exhibition varieties, and usuallly in the favorite autumn colors, reds, bronzes, and yellows.

By choosing chrysanthemum varieties carefully, you can have a succession of bloom from now until winter, and since they are perennials, they will put on the same show next year.

Give your 'mums a good sunny location with rich, well dug soil and water the plants deeply and regularly.

The TV Log For The Week

TIM ROONEY, son of Mickey Rooney, has a role as a town rowdy in "The Further Adventures of Gallegher," the trouble-prone newspaper copy boy, on "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" Sunday at 7:30 p.m. on KRON.

WEEKEND SHOWS

A Salute To Louis Armstrong

Louis Armstrong is saluted on his 65th birthday and his 50th year as a creative musician on "The Hollywood Palace" this evening at 9:30 o'clock on KGO.

Bing Crosby hosts the bill. And his guests, in addition to Armstrong, will include Phil Harris, Carl Ballantine and the Young Americans.

ALSO UNUSUAL and worthwhile this evening:

For fans of country music, a new series, "Grand Ole Opry," bows in from Nashville, with Jud Collins and John Cameron Swayze as co-hosts (KTVU, 7 p.m.).

Jimmie Rodgers sings his record hit, "The World I Used to Know," on "Shindig." The guest list also includes Little Anthony and the Imperials, Georgie Fame, Donna Loren, Dick and Dee Dee and Bobby Sherman (KGO, 7:30 p.m.).

"ABC Scope" tells the story of one family's experience in raising a thalidomide-handicapped son (KGO, 7 p.m.).

The prime time movies are "The Time Machine," a 1960 MGM science fiction movie based on an H. G. Wells novel with Rod Taylor and Yvette Mimieux as the stars (KRON, 9 p.m.), and the Venice Film Festival award-winning "Tomorrow Is My Turn," a 1962 French war drama with Charles Aznavour (KTVU, 8 p.m.).

ON SUNDAY, the always delightful "Bell Telephone Hour" opens its new season with an all-Jerome Kern program with Ginger Rogers as hostess and Ella Fitzgerald, Roberta Peters, Earl Wrightson, John Davidson, Nancy Dussault and Ferrante and Teicher as her guests (KRON, 6:30 p.m.).
